EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE world was not destroyed in 1881.

THE present Cabinet is composed entirely of lawyers. Even the acting Vice President, the President and the Speaker of the House are members of the legal profession.

AND now it appears that the Star Route thieves contributed money to secure the nomination of Hancock at Cincinnati, and gave largely of their stealings to swell the campaign fund of the Democratic National Committee. They knew that exposure was sure to follow in the event of Garfield's election. The conclusion is inevitable that they expected to be protected under Hancock.

GLADSTONE vigorously denounces the Mormon missionaries who wilfully lie to Englishmen, to tempt them to join their faith and emigrate. Mormonism is undoubtedly one of the greatest evils of the century.

FASCINATING Mrs. Langtry is to receive a higher salary at the Haymarket Theatre than any other leading stock actress in London. The reason lies not in her superior abilities but in her superiority as a drawing card. She does not require the preliminary working up in the newspapers any other aspirant to professional honors would. If she has not talent, however, she will drop down from the position she has taken as suddenly as she rose to it.

IT is a poor picture of an apple tree that needs to be labeled "Apple tree." It is a poor statue or portrait of anyone that needs a card attached to tell people what and whom it is meant to represent. Or else, if it is a good representation and still needs such an explanation, it augers a very ignorant class of spectators. Why is it then that so many Christians seem to imagine that they have to label themselves as such by constant talk about their religion, their conscience, their faith, their piety in general? They must be poor specimens of the image of God who need this.

INTELLECTUAL Anna Dickinson takes the road again next month as a dramatic star, playing male roles only. She will judiciously confine her efforts to small towns, playing one night in each, and if she finds that country audiences take kindly to her in Macbeth, Romeo, Claude Melnotte and kindred roles, she will try it on in the cities next, beginning in the largest of all, London. She evidently has the most complete faith in her own ability, and there is but little doubt that the project will be financially successful at the start, especially as she only proposes one night stands in each town.

IT is certainly safe to announce the demise at no distant day of speculative insurance in our State. Although a brave attempt is being made by a few of the companies to maintain their existance by operations in interior districts where the lights of civilazation have not yet penetrated, the determined war of extermination that has been waged by the authorities against those engaged in the nefarious business will compel even these to succumb eventually. The cremation of policies amounting to a quarter of a million dollars, with a brass band accompaniment, which took place in Berks county a few days ago, shows very plainly the drift of public opinion in that locality at least, and the acts of policy holders in other districts throughout the State show that the feeling of the people generally is in direct opposition to the business.

Not a Thief.

The effort to make it appear that Jefferson Davis robbed $2,500,000 of confederate specie is about as ridiculous as it would be to bring a charge of swindling against a man convicted of murder in the first degree. It is not necessary to arraign Mr. Davis as a thief. His crime includes all others. He is a felon at large, branded as effectually as if scared with branding-iron, and as conspicuously a convict as if one leg of his trousers were striped. Mr. Davis is known everywhere, not for what he is to-day so much as for what he has been. He enjoys a common niche in history with Erostratus, Benedict Arnold and a few other choice spirits, who in their time mistook infamy for fame. Mr. Davis is a harmless old gentleman, very greatly overrated in his day and generation, because there was never anything great about him except his ambition.

The dream of his life, from which he was seventeen years ago rudely awakened, was to found a State upon robbery and ruin. The confederacy was the most gigantic robbery of any age. Of what import can it be to be-little the man by charging him with common theft? It would not be more absurd to charge him with pocket-picking. The story of his specie train of twenty wagons laden with gold coin is simply ridiculous. $2,500,000 in gold would ride very comfortably and safely in two army wagons. Hence we are asked to believe that Mr. Davis tried to get away with about twenty millions, which is probably twice as much coin as the confederacy ever had in its coffers in its palmiest days. It is not necessary to assume that Mr. Davis was dishonest in the sense of taking money that did not belong to him. That is not the crime imputed to him. But this is an age of small things, and it is not to be hoped for with reason that so prominent a personage should escape the imputation of small vices.

It is altogether best that no small things shall intervene between Mr. Davis and the American people. Between him and them there falls the shadow of a great crime, and it falls from him toward them. It is the case of Cain restated. Though guilty of the highest crime known to the supreme law, he goes his way unchallenged by the law he has outraged and unmolested by the people whose ruin he sought to make the stepping stone to power. There is no case at all parallel in history. Arnold died in exile because he dared not set foot on the shores of his native land. Jefferson Davis is free to go out and come in as he wills, dogged only by the unspeakable contempt of the people he betrayed. He bears the brand upon his forehead, and no man dares to slay him. From time to time he goes to England, where his advent causes less of a ripple on the surface of affairs than the advent of one of his slaves. He gives a dozen years to the preparation of a book which falls still-born from the press. He is a man who volunteers an explanation because none is asked. He is not invited to write history, but he writes it, and the world refuses to read what he has written. For a few years there was a sort of a glamour about the man but even that is gone. The world, even his idolized south, has gone on and left him meandering by the wayside, a conspicuous tramp of history, it is true, but still a tramp. And now the gossips of the age are trying to dignify him by making him out a thief! Leave the old man alone, with his bundle of recollections slung packwise upon his shoulder, picking his way slowly and painfully into the deepening twilight of his age.

ADELINA PATTI has been criticising Clara Kellogg, saying she is "much overrated and a cold, passionless singer." It is Clara Louise's turn next. Her opinion of Patti would be equally as interesting and reliable.

The President's Choice.

President Arthur has not yet burned his bridges. He has done things that the people do not approve, but has not yet done more than they can forgive. He must wish to have a united party. Every conceivable aspiration that he can have must be sacrificed if he does not seek that end. He is a shrewd politician. He knows—no man living knows better—that the majority of the Republican party and the majority of the people are against the men and the policies wherewith his name has hitherto been associated. The American people does not often bend its will to the preferences of one man. Stubborn pertinacity on his part, in those points wherein his past has not been approved by the people, can only cause discord in the party, evil in the country, and the final defeat of the President and his friends. Only by wise moderation and judicious yielding can he bring the party into accord.

The people are not personally hostile to President Arthur. They appreciate his bearing after the assassination. They see the extreme difficulty of his position. They recognize with ready thanks the good things that he has done. They have been slow to censure his disregard of the public will in matters of some importance—his robbing the political graveyard in the formation of a Cabinet, for instance. The feeling toward him is kindly, hopeful and forbearing. But he will make a fatal mistake if he thinks that the opinions of the people have changed, as to the vital matters at issue between different elements. Nobody asks him to cast aside all his personal friends. But there will be scant harmony if he supposes that they have become the party since he became the President. If there are to be rewards for the minority who were beaten, there must also be toleration for the majority who were victorious at Chicago and at Albany. The party can be united and harmonious only on condition that the President represents the whole and not a part of it. The majority will be in accord with him only when he recognizes, respects and consults the wishes of the majority.

Fidelity to friends is good, but fidelity to the people is better. Not to that shifting and changeable breath of popular favor which mere demagogues obey, and to which no true man can be faithful, but to the true interests, the earnest beliefs and the settled convictions of the people. One settled conviction, to which emphatic expression has been given is that it is not well for the country to be ruled by a set of bosses. Another is that a party does not deserve to succeed, and in the end cannot succeed, which relies exclusively upon its machine, and not at all upon genuine advocacy of sound principles. President Arthur will respect these convictions, and bear in mind that they have not been uprooted nor shaken, if he seeks to bring the Republican party into harmonious and triumphant accord with himself.

He will be judged by his acts. He will be judged patiently, until patience ceases to be a virtue. If that time should ever come, if President Arthur should set himself against the will of the majority, strive to reverse the policy of his predecessor, and refuses to be more than the leader and instrument of a defeated faction, the country would survive, for it is great, and the Republican party would survive, for it is true to its principles, but President Arthur as a political leader would not. Public feeling would in that event be clearly and strongly expressed. The President would then learn, first, the full strength of the public hostility to personalism and bossism—to the attempt to set up government of favored individuals, by favored individuals, for favored individuals, in place of that government of the people, by the people and for the people, in which the Republican believes. And, secondly, he would learn the full strength of the people's love and veneration for the President whom they elected and whose splendid life, noble teachings and heroic death they will not forget.

A Sign of Healthful Prosperity.

As the year 1882 has dawned the evidences of prosperity which marked business affairs with a healthful vigor throught the past year are not only fully sustained, but multiplied. Every artery of trade is swollen with the current of increased activity, and the merchant and manufacturer, the artisan and the laborer are alike reaping a rich harvest from industrious efforts and assiduous labors.

Neither has it been a year of idleness in the development of the material resources of the country. In every direction the pioneer has been actively engaged. Railroads have peen projected and built with phenomenal rapidity. Mines have been discovered and compelled to yield vast volumes of treasure in tribute to the energy and skill of the operators. Marked progress has been made in industrial science and art, and all have contributed their share to the sum total of prosperity.

While the merchant's multliplied resources are subjects of universal congratulation, the prosperity of no single branch of industry is more gratifying that that of the country journals. Next to the public schools the weekly newspaper is the educator of American public opinion and no other instrument touches the heart of the home circle. Evidence of their healthfulness is testimony to the mental and moral vigor of the of the community it represents. The intelligence and character of a community is measured by the prosperity of its local journal, and while it manifests signs of prosperity there is no basis for apprehension of business or mental degeneracy there.

THERE is something very peculiar in the fatal fascination of Arctic adventure which does not wear out in the face of a long series of disastrous defeats, and the appalling record of human suffering and death connected with them. With the terrible experience of the Jeannette expedition yet fresh, so far as its meagre details have been revealed; with the fate of Mr. Smith and the yacht Eira beclouded by despairing doubt, we have yet an experienced polar voyager, Lieutenant Schwatka, calmy putting aside the painfully exploded theories of past attempts, and directing attention to the still more hazardous experiment of ballooning, and an expedition is actually organizing for such a venture. As part of the details of this project, we learn that a telegraph wire is to be reeled out from the balloon car, in progress, with the ultimate idea, possibly, of making it fast to the veritable, tangible North Pole itself when reached. The circumpolar regions would hardly seem provocative of feverishness, except of the kind which alternates with chills, yet there evidently is an Arctic fever which is highly contagious.

EX-SECRETARY BLAINE appears inclined to copy Beaconsfield's tactics after he had been displaced from the premiership by Gladstone. Beaconsfield's entertainments at his house after he left the British Cabinet far surpassed in splendor and and brilliancy those given by his more successful rival. The announcement that Blaine is to keep open house in Washington and entertain his friends in a princely manner savors not a little of the Beaconsfield style of keeping up the leadership of the opposition. He is evidently preparing himself for a gallant fight for the Presidential nomination in 1884.

FOR lack of something else to talk about during the present vacation at Washington, a cock-and-bull story has been started of a proposed marriage between President Arthur and the Princess Beatrice.

A New Form of Rascality.

We like to keep the world informed of the progress of American inventions. The latest comes to us from the far West. Some enterprising "capitalists" and "financial" gentlemen moved into Dakota Territory, formed themselves into a "county," passed laws and regulations and gave themselves a standing in the eyes of the financial world. They then issued bonds to the amount of two hundred thousand dollars as "Douglas county bonds" and took them to New York for the unsuspecting Wall street lambs. There was no such county, no population, no legal organization—simply a schrewd, theiving expedient.

We have not heard what has become of the "bonds," whether they are held by banks or trust companies, but we have no doubt that there are enterprising gentlemen enough in the community to organize a dozen other "counties" and issue as many "bonds" as the street will buy. The whole business is felonous, but it is not any more so than many financial experiments of recent years in the way of issuing railroad "bonds" upon roads that have no value and selling them to confiding investors.

THE tender and noble oration of Senator Hoar on the late President Garfield merits a careful reading from beginning to end. There has been no worthier tribute than this in spoken words to the memory of the man whose cruel and untimely death the country still mourns with scarce diminished grief. How admirably his positon and influence as a legislator are described in the following sentence: "There are those who had to do in marshalling the political forces of the House, but almost from the time he entered it he was the leader of its best thought." And how well the character of the martyr President is drawn in these few words: "Everything he did and said manifested the serious, reverent love of excellence." Comparing Garfield with his great military leader, General Thomas, who was called the Rock of Chickamougua, and referring to the brave fight he made on the financial questions which involved the Nation's honor, Senator Hoar aptly calls him the Rock of Ohio. Alas! that he was not spared to become the Rock of the Republic, and to be through many eventful years its sure reliance for tranquility, prosperity and progress toward higher standards of public and private virtue.—Tribune.

GUITEAU has fared badly at the hands of the experts. All who have been called who are of recognized standing in their profession concur in judging him sane. Dr. Gray, of the Utica Asylum, said that, in his opinion, Guiteau did not believe in the inspiration theory at all, but was feigning a part in the court-room. This brought out the retort from the prisoner, "How many men have you helped to hang, doctor?" Guiteau has a quick appreciation of damaging testimony, and probably begins to apprehend that he may himself be a candidate for Dr. Gray's black list. Dr. Strong, of the Cleveland Asylum, testified that a delusion which would lead to a murder would cause a profound mental disturbance, which would continue long after the commission of the act. All the experts manifest a similar healthy incredulity on the point of temporary insanity. Dr. McDonald, of Blackwell's Island Asylum, has never known an instance where inspired persons concealed the fact of there inspiration. In Dr. Fordyce Barker's opinion the fact that Guiteau had reasoned on the subject of his alleged inspiration and had refrained from committing the act when the surrounding circumstances were not entirely as he preferred to have them, was a proof that his free agency was not destroyed. The evidence has led the public to entirely the same conclusion. With great unanimity they regard Guiteau as a disgusting fraud, and are impatient to get him on the gallows. It is, nevertheless, reasuring to know that disinterested experts, who have made the subject of insanity a life-long study, are in this case of one mind with the people on the question of Guiteau's responsibility.

IT is undoubtedly a source of embarrassment to the President that before he came to the high office which he is so discreetly filling his political lot was cast with that element of the party whose aims are now reactionary and whose methods are now unpopular with the mass of men who constitute the vital force and the hope of the Republican party. That element at Chicago was known as the "third term" men. It embraced most of the leaders who put their faith in a spoils-maintained machine, the men who are wedded to discarded methods, and those in nearly every State who have been set aside by their constituencies either for being unequal to the demands made upon them or for having survived the period of their usefulness as public servants, but who still labor under the firm conviction that the one object of party existence is to "do something for them." It also embraces the greater part of those who hate new ideas in politics, who deride progress, and who become angry when reform in the public service is suggested. It may be further said that this element embraces a considerable portion of those who are in polities to make the most out of it.—Boston Journal.

A Miniature Electric Lamp.

Mr Edison has just completed and transmitted to Prof. F. G. Fairfield, of the New York College of Veterinary Surgeons, an electric lamp which has the novelty of being probably the most minute ever constructed. The electrodes, or carbon points are only one-tenth of an inch in diameter, the object being to obtain the highest attainable intensity within the smallest possible space. It requires a battery of about forty cells. The flame will not exceed the dimensions of a silver five-cent piece, but will concentrate within this limited area the power of five-hundred candles. The conductors are scarcaly larger than a hair, and the electrodes are adjusted by means of a delicate screw movement, capable of altering the distance of their points from each other one-ten thousandth of an inch, if necessary. The instrument was made to illuminate a microscopic object, constructed upon the newly discovered law of homologous sections. This lens renders it possible to obtain a power of sixty milion diameters. At such a power only a section of a colored corpuscle of human blood can be viewed at a time. Computing the molecule of living matter to be about a twenty millionth of an inch in diameter, Prof. Fairfield believes it possible to project the image of it and to take photographs showing the molecular constitution of such complex bodies as albumen.

A New Order of Things at the White House.

President Arthur has certainly introduced a new order of things at the White House. He seems disposed to profit by the lessons of the murder of Garfield. He has made the rules governing the admission of the public to the White House as strict as they should have been made long ago. No stranger is admitted to see him now until he has told his business to the private secretary. Very few persons are allowed to ascend the stairs and take their places in the waiting rooms, where last spring 150 to 200 persons were often to be seen at one time. He proposes to abolish the practics of seeing people simply for the purpose of shaking hands, and will not go out into the ante rooms as Garfield used to do, and shake hands all around with the crowd. The attendants at the White House say they never saw anything like it before.

Miss Fargo, the heiress of $6,000,000, made by her father in Wells & Fargo's express, was secretly married three months ago to Lieutenant H. G. Squires, U. S. A. The ceremony was performed at Hampton, Md., by Rev. Mr. Gravatt.

There is a gift that is almost a blow, and there is a kind work that is magnificence; so much there in the way we do things.

Poetry.

DON'T CALL IN THE MORNING.

Now, Ronald, you know that I love you;
You know that my promise is true;
And I think there is nothing more pleasant
Than leading the German with you.
But, listen, I've something to whisper,
Be sure 'tis no perilous warning.
Put your fears all at rest, 'tis a simple request,
Please, Ronald, don't call in the morning.

Now, Ronald, don't wrinkle your forehead,
And open your eyes like a goose;
Don't try to look rueful or horrid,
My love it will be of no use.
One can't arrange puff, braid and ringlet,
With only a half minute's warning,
And when, deshabille one really can't say
One longs for a call in the morning.

Besides mamma thinks it is silly,
And surely dear mamma must know,
For she's been a leader of fashion
These thirty odd seasons or so.
Don't talk of simplicity dearest;
What's beauty without some adorning?
One looks like a fright after dancing all night,
So, Ronald, don't call in the morning.

Our Story Teller.

The Danger of Flirting.

Pollie was pretty, and she knew it. She was nurse-girl at Squire Ridgeway's, but she knew it just as well as if she had been a queen. She knew others thought so, too, and though she was engaged—or 'all the same as engaged'—to Leonard Hopper, she could not keep from flirting with anyone who showed the least desire to flirt with her.

And Leonard Hopper did not like it, and they quarreled and parted, and made it up again—not once but a hundred times.

The flirting with the young men he knew was bad enough, but there was something worse.

Whenever Polly took the baby—Squire Ridgeway's little granddaughter, and the pride of the family—up to the park to walk, she was sure to go into the pretty arbor that overlooked the lake, and there, after a while, to be joined by a young man, such an elegant gentleman, Pollie thought, who paid her such compliments.

Nobody knew about this but the cook. It was cook who told me the story, and over and over again cook declared that she ought to be ashamed of herself, and that Leonard was worth twenty of that fellow.

But Edgar Montmorency was so elegant, so charming!

'And it is well to keep two strings to your bow, cook,' said Pollie; 'Leonard is so cross sometimes.'

Thus matters stood when 4th of July came near. Squire Ridgeway and his family were gone out of town, and cook and Pollie kept house.

Generally only one left the house at a time, but the Fourth was a special day. Pollie and cook were both going out, and Pollie was to take the key in her pocket and be home first.

All was settled. She had made up her mind to see the procession in the morning, and the fireworks in the evening, and she was quite short with Leonard when he came on the evening of the third, and said in a hesitating sort of way:

'Pollie, mother wants you to take tea and spend the evening with her. Will you?'

'I want to see the fireworks,' said Pollie.

'Very well, Pollie,' said Leonard. 'I'd take you, if I could, but something will keep me from going with you to-morrow evening.'

'I shan't spend my time indoors to-morrow,' said Pollie.

So Leonard went away with a sad face, and Pollie sat crimping the ruffles for her cuffs, and thinking of Edgar Montmorency.

Cook went out early in the morning, so did Pollie, but at five she returned, made herself smart, and went out again.

At the corner she met Edgar Montmorency, and he offered his arm and took her first to an ice-cream saloon, then through the streets, past crowds of men and boys until they came to a great platform.

'I've got seats engaged here,' said Edgar; and Pollie proud of her fine gentleman, who could get seats among 'quality,' mounted the steps and took her place.

'I'll stand behind you,' said Edgar; and give me that great heavy key, for it's what no lady should have to bother with; it's too big. Besides, your pocket is not safe in a crowd.

Pollie took the key from her pocket, and her beau leaned over her talking to her and the display began.

There were stars, wheels, and crosses, eagles and banners; Liberty and all the rest of it; and as Liberty was vanishing in a blue fizzle, Edgar Montmorency whispered:

'I'm going to get some candy,' made use of his long legs and clambered over the benches and was gone.

Pollie sat still gaping at the show, and uttering 'Ohs!' and 'Ahs!' of delight, and time passed so quickly that she did not know how long she had been deserted, when suddenly the last gleam of color dropped down from the sky in a train of sparks, and the people began to move.

Where was Mr. Montmorency? Pollie looked about her. There was no sign of him.

The crowd was dispersing, the windows were growing dark; but he did not come, and she must wait for him, for he had the key in his pocket.

Pollie waited but her heart sank. She grew frightened and a policeman called to her, asking if she meant to stay up there all night.

'I'm waiting for company,' said Pollie.

'Well, he seems to have forgot about you,' said the policeman.

And Pollie descended from the platform bathed in tears, with a dreadful presentiment of evil in her heart, hurried away homeward, but just as she turned the corner, two honest, fat, motherly figures waddled around it, and came towards her—cook and Leonard's mother.

'You've brought it on yourself,' said cook; 'but I'm sorry. If you want to see what has happened at home you'd better come.

'Leonard sent us to see you took no harm,' said the mother, 'ah, you'd better took tea with me.'

'What is the matter,' asked Pollie.

'You'll see soon enough,' said cook.

And Pollie, dreading she hardly knew what, hurried along the street between the two old women.

At last they reached Squire Ridgeway's house, and saw, to Pollie's astonishment, that it was brightly ligted, and that a crowd had gathered about the doors.

'Now,' said cook, 'now, Polly, you'll see your elegant ——.'

And there in the midst of a group of stalwart policeman, there, indeed, was Edgar Montmorency; and there were two other men; and all three were handcuffed, all three uttering furious imprecations.

Pollie screamed aloud, and suddenly the truth dawned upon her.

Cook put it into plain English.

'You see it was a plan from the first,' said she. 'He made love to you to get information about the silver and the safe and he asked you to the fireworks to get the key. I guessed what he was and told Leonard, and it is Leonard that has managed to have him caught at his work; and wel for you I knew all or master would have had you arrested for an accomplice. Leonard and me knew you were honest and only just a fool. You ought to be thankful.'

Poor Pollie! she suffered a great deal. It was weeks before she dared to speak to Leonard, though they met in church every Sunday, and she thought herself well and fitly punished, and told cook that she should surely be an old maid now; but it was only six months from that day when faithful Leonard came behind her as she was drawing the baby up and down the walk one afternoon, and said:

'Pollie dear hasn't this gone on long enough?'

'No, Leonard,' said Polly, 'I never expected you to like me again.'

'Ah, but I did,' said Leonard. 'And since your master thinks I did him a service, and has made me a present of enough to furnish up nicely with, shan't we set our wedding day this day month?'

All that Polly said was:

'Oh, Leonard!' and there were tears in her eyes, but he kissed them away.

Emigration from Liverpool.

As was expected, there was a perceptible falling off in the emigration from the port of Liverpool during last month, when compared with the previous month, though there was a marked increase when contrasting the figures for October, 1880. The approach of the winter months has always a decreasing influence on emigration. The returns for October were issued yesterday by the official at Liverpool, from which it appears that eighty-five vessels took their departure for the following places, viz: 41 for the United States with 17,131 emigrants, of whom 8839 were English, 259 Scotch, 1335 Irish, 6010 foreigners, and 588 not distinguished; 23 vessels to Canada with with 2307 emigrants, 1688 being English, 12 Scotch, and 607 foreigners; 1 to New Zealand, with one emigrant; 2 to Australia, with 27 emigrants, 26 English and one Scotch; seven to South America, with 238, of whom 90 were English, 19 Scotch, 18 Irish, 1 foreign and 110 not given. East Indies, 11 vessels, with 339 passengers; West Indies, 3 vessel, with 26 passengers; China 2 vessels, with 4 passengers, and the west coast of Africa, 5 vessel with 82 passengers. The total number of the emigrants was 20,155, of whom 10,743 were English, 291 Scotch, 1353 Irish, 6618 foreigners and 1150 whose nationalities were not known. It will seem from these figures that the English emigrants formed more than half of the actual total. In the 1150 not distinguished more of them will be English also. The figures for September this year were 24,286, which was 4113 above the month just closed. During October, 1880, the number of emigrants was 14,065, which is 5460 less than October this year.

Uncle Simon Peter's Sarcasm.

The following took place at a camp meeting recently, conducted by Rev. S. F. Richardson, presiding officer of the Augusta district last year: "Uncle Simon Peter," as he is generally called, went up into the stand on Sunday morning to preach. As is customary at camp meetings he found a great many of the young men sitting among the ladies. He told them they must all move on the men's side, which they did. That evening Rev. Samuel Jones was to preach and Uncle Simon Peter was up in the pulpit with him. Just as Mr. Jones got up to commence preaching, Uncle Simon Peter looked over the audience and spied a young man sitting with a young lady. He immediately jerked Mr. Jones by the coat tail and motioned him to sit down. Rising he said: "Young ladies, if any of you have a spare dress, please put it on that young man over there among those ladies, with his hair parted in the middle, he wants to be a girl so bad."

Laplanders sometimes possess from 500 to 1,000 reindeer.

Outwalked the Horse Car.

Chicago Tribune.

Night in a great city. The wind surged and moaned with a mournful cadence through the leafless trees that stood like gaunt spectres of the night, ever and anon bending low their withered trunks and great black branches as if in mute appeal to the storm king to not prostrate them forever with his cold, merciless breath.

Adown a street where gleamed the bright lights of wine bibbers' haunts and the baleful glare of the oyster saloon fell upon the sidewalk, a young man strode with quick, nervous step and a wistful, haunting look in his eye. At a corner where the crowd of eager, jostling pedestrians was thickest he paused and looked anxiously around. The soft, low tinkle of a bell was heard. Clasping a bruised nickel in his left hand, the young man stepped briskly forward, saying to himself: "My heart has not deceived me; I am in time."

Adelbert had caught the semi-weekly car on Van Buren street.

In the elegantly-furnished parlor of a handsome residence a tall and radiantly-beautiful girl sat silently in front of a grate fire, the flames from which leaped lightly up the chimney and cast a ruddy glow on all that came within the range of their lambent beams. Cleopatra McGuire was the only daughter of a father who fairly idolized the proud beauty who presided over his household with such stately graces—his wife having fallen into a washtub and been drowned within two years of their marriage.

"Which shall I choose?" said the girl, in soft, mellow tones. "Shall it be the strong-limbed Rupert, with his proud Saxon pedigree, or Adelbert, who would deck his bride in jewels? My heart tells me that with Rupert ever by my side life would always seem a pleasant dream. I love him with a wild, passionate devotion that time can never change. But Adelbert is rich and powerful. As his wife I should shine in society. Oh, me! Which shall it be?"

Suddenly rising from the fauteuil she said: "I have decided. To him who gets here first this evening will I plight my troth. Fate shall decide."

* * * * *

The Van Buren street car was slowly wending its way westward. On the sidewalk came with firm tread a sunny-haired young man—Rupert Ginhooley. Suddenly there fell upon the air the clangor of a bell. Rupert broke into a run. The bridge began to open. He succeeded in getting across. The car did not. In the rear left-hand corner of that car sat Adelbert Quirk.

Fate had begun its work.

* * * * *

After crossing the bridge Rupert did not slacken his pace and was soon well toward the end of his journey, when the pitiful crying of a child attracted his attention. He stopped and finding that the little waif had lost its way waited patiently until a policeman came up, into whose care he confided the wanderer.

By this time the bridge was closed and the car was thundering on its way, the horses lashed into their best speed by the driver, who was anxious to make up for lost time. Just as Rupert gave the child to the policeman the car caught up with him. He had but half a mile to go. Walking leisurely along he reached the residence of Stuyvesant McGuire, and as the door opened Cleopatra fell into his arms with a glad cry.

"Fate has brought you to me, my darling," she said. "You must never leave me again."

An hour later the door bell rang and Adelbert Quirk was informed by the hired girl that Miss McGuire was not at home.

Rupert had outwalked the horse car.

Chicago handles about one-third of the entire forest products of the vast pineries of the northwest. Millions of acres of timber lands in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois are tributary to her market. The entire product of these pineries last year in manufactured lumber amounted to about 5,850,000,000 feet, and, according to the best estimates at this date, the production for the present year will show an excess of at least twelve per cent.

A Southern Romance.

Toward the close of Pierce's administration, society in Washington was much agitated and interested by a brilliant marriage of a daughter of a member of the cabinet who then enjoyed a world wide fame as a financier and political economist.

This was Robert J. Walker, a man of remarkable intellectual acuteness, great research and indefatigable industry.

There was no lovelier or more attractive young woman than his daughter. Her mother, a lineal descendant from Benjamin Franklin, had contributed, by her talents and charms largely to the success of her husband in politics, law and social advancement. The happy bridegroom on this occasion was a young naval officer of one of the oldest creole families of Louisiana.

The marriage ceremonies were of the most brilliant character. The President, every member of the cabinet, the foreign ministers, the senators, in fine, all the notabilities of Washington, attended, blessed and were enthused by the happy scene of a marriage that seemed so congenial, suitable and felicitous.

After their marriage the young couple went on a grand tour to Europe, and took up their residence in Paris, where they sojourned for some months. Their means were ample and their circle of friends and associates were of the highest social class. And so for some years the course of their married life ran smoothly, until disasters, political, sectional and financial, fell upon them and their families. At the breaking out of our civil war, Robert J. Walker attached himself to the fortunes of the north and became a bitter enemy of the southern struggle for independence. His son-in-law was compelled, by every obligation of honor, state pride and duty to the ancient family of which he was a member, to identify himself with the south.

The consequent alternations and discord led to their permanent separation. The young wife retired with her child to the mother and family in Philadelphia, and there resided for several years in seclusion. In the meantime Mr. Robert J. Walker had lost by the investment in a railroad enterprise the large fortune he had acquired by his professional success, and at his death left his family in narrow circumstances. His widowed daughter, despite her extreme reserve, could not fail to attract the attention, sympathy and interest of the friends of the father and mother. Many advances were made by gentlemen, of wealth and prominence to engage her favorable consideration of proposals of marriage.

She resisted for some time all such advances. At last, however, her friends and society were astonished by the report that she had accepted the hand of a gentleman distinguished in the professional and political world but cursed with a deformity and mutilation as repulsive and revolting as that of the veiled Mokanna of Moore's Lalla Rookh. In boyhood he had fallen into the fire on his face and so burned it as to present even now, in advance age, a most pitiable and hideous aspect.

Those who are accustomed to make summer visits and sojourns to Long Branch have not failed to observe in the parlors of the West End Hotel, on the promenades and drives of that delightful resort, the unhappy victim of this cruel misfortune, in a stout gentleman of good figure, of dignified and graceful carriage, but with a face so blurred, scarred and distorted as almost to conceal and abolish all human resemblance, and repel with disgust all advance to closer observation and acquaintance. Upon that gentleman's arm leans a lovely woman, whose pale face still retains the most refined and beautiful expression, and whose harmonious features and lithe and graceful figure may be quietly recognized as those of the beautiful Mrs. Walker, who twenty-five years before had enthralled all beholders and given her the unquestioned title to the sweetest and prettiest girl in Washington city.

The marked attention of the brilliant company at the West End through which they passed, and the eagerness of all persons to exchange courtesies and engage in conversation with the gentleman and lady, the attention and respect with which everything which fell from the gentleman was received by all listeners betokened the high consideration in which he was held. To draw him into conversation and drink in every utterance appeared to be the ambition of every one.

"Who is that couple?" would be the natural inquiry of all strangers; "that terrible mutilated and defaced gentleman and that unhappy daughter who hangs upon his arm." The ready answer would be, that gentleman is the ablest, most eloquent and impressive lawyer and orator of Philadelphia, who for many years has led the bar, and is the most agreeable and captivating gentleman of the very polished society of that refined city. The lady is the daughter of Robert J. Walker, so distinguished in our political and financial history. The gentleman is spoken of as a prominent candidate for the position of attorney general, and as likely to secure that high office should the opposition to Howe being developed, prove successful..

"Never leave what you undertake until you can reach your arms around it and clinch your hands on the other side," says a recently published book for young men. Very good advice, but what if she screams?

A Weather Key.

The value to be attached to "Professor" Vennor's much vaunted key to the weather, and to all his utterances based upon it, may be judged by collating these two contradictory predictions concerning the present month. From the Almanac for 1881:

"The characteristics of December probably will be those of the preceding two months. This I believe will be one of those Decembers that will cause inquiry of the oldest inhabitant as to whether there ever had been such a December before. In Canada flowers may be discovered in bloom in the open garden, and ploughing will be continued almost up to Christmas."

In his new Almanac for 1882, published three months ago, he goes to the opposite extreme:

"DECEMBER, 1881.—I hardly like the look of this month, viewed from the present standpoint (September 18.) It looks ugly, and smacks of cold—bitter, biting cold, North and South, East and West. The month bids fair to be cold and dry rather than otherwise, and this cold may be somewhat proportionate to the heat of the past summer and extend to extreme southern and western points. The first of the month is likely to bring in winter abruptly in most sections where winter is usually expected and experienced. The first week of the month will probably give the first good snow falls of the season in New York."

One or the other of these forecasts must prove to be partially correct; and the Canadian will point with pride to that one and say nothing of the other, "as December is an important one of the winter months, and one about which I am particularly careful." It may not be amiss to remark here that the winter change (alias "November wave") occurred this year early in October, instead of at its usual date, approximately November 1.

Value of a Newspaper.

The following is the experience of a mechanic concerning the benefit of a newspaper: Ten years ago I lived in a town in Indiana. On my return home one night, for I am a carpenter by trade, I saw a little girl leave my door, and I asked my wife who she was. She said Mrs. Harris had sent her after their newspaper, which my wife had borrowed. As we sat down to tea, my wife calling me by name, said: 'I wish you would subscribe for the newspaper; it is so much comfort to me when you are away from home.' 'I would like to do so,' said I, 'but you know I owe a payment on the house and lot. It will be all I can do to meet it.' I however yielded to her entreaties, and subscribed for the paper. It came in due time to the shop. While resting one noon and looking over it, I saw an advertisement of the county commissionors to let a bridge that was to be built. I put in a bid for the bridge and the job was awarded to me, on which I cleared $3,000, which enabled me to pay for my house and lot easily, and for the newspaper. I should not have known anything about the contract, and could not have met my payment on my house and lot, had it not been for the newspaper.' A mechanic never loses anything by taking a county newspaper.

The Southern Beauty.

The Southern beauty, as seen at the Cotton Exposition, is a slender brunette with classic features, faultless, though delicate form and flashing black eyes. There is another type, less numerous, but just as attractive—the robust blonde, graceful and debonair. Still a third type may be noticed here. Strangers will find it prominent among the two, but she cannot be properly classed as a beauty. That is the blondine, who must be called pretty, but not beautiful; whose dignified manner, charming presence and graceful carriage necessarily add to her natural attractions.

She is not in a mixed throng in greater percentage than either of the others, and when seen invariably commands extensive and respectful comment from the opposite sex.

It is a remarkable fact that while the male natives have ceased to bear animosity towards the grim old warrior who left a black souvenir in Georgia "forty miles wide and three hundred long," the women, on the contrary, will never forget that Sherman burned their homes and they uniformly refuse to regard him as anything else than an invador and despoiler. Speaking to some Southern ladies about Sherman a few days ago, they said they would never forget him and they would not permit him to be feted here if they could prevent it.

"Why," said one, when he came South before and was feasted here there were women at the banquet table who wished every drink he took could be transformed into poison."

Madame Jennie Lind Goldsmidt, Mr. Conway says, is only sixty and does not look fifty, her hair being but slightly touched with gray, her eyes still bright and happy, and her figure still graceful. She has a pleasant home, and retains warm memories of America.

How a Curate Got Even with a Bishop.

A bishop was once making the tour of his diocese; but the weather being extremely sultry, my lord descended from his carriage to enjoy the cool in a wood by the roadside. A curate, sorrily mounted, passing him, the bishop ask him whither he was going.

"To Farnham," replied the curate.

"In that case, sir," said the bishop, in a tone as if he would be condescending, "I beg you to call at the first inn, and order a good dinner to be provided for me."

"Will your lordship dine alone?" asked the curate, who probably expected an invitation.

"Certainly, sir."

The curate was a man of wit, and fond of a joke; he felt his delicacy wounded by the nature of his commission, and, to revenge himself, he desired the inn-keeper to prepare a dinner of three courses, and an elegant dessert for twelve distinguished pillars of the church, with the bishop at the head. The prelate on his arrival was not a little astonished by so much preparation; but what was his surprise when he saw the bill of fare that had been provided! He rang the bell and ordered up the host, whom he addressed in a great rage.

"How, in the name of heaven, could you suppose that one person would need such an abundance of provisions?"

"Your messenger, my lord, announced to me twelve persons at least; the Bishop of G——."

"That is myself."

"The Dean of Salisbury."

"I am the Dean."

"The Prebendary of Winchester.'

"I am he also."

"The head of the college of——."

"Still that is myself."

"The——"

"Stop, stop," exclaimed the bishop; "I know all the rest of the guests; you may go."

Snow Streamers.

The peak of Mount Davidson last evening presented a most wild and wintry appearance. The snow streamers were abroad in all their glory. Last evening, however, they could hardly be called streamers. They were in reality an unending series of whirlwinds that chased each other along the crest of the mountain. These spiral columns of snow took a thousand shapes in forming and vanishing. Being strongly lighted by the setting sun, the great surging columns looked like whirls of flame and illuminated smoke rolling up from a great fire. This briliancy was seen in places where the rays of the sun passed through the thin mist of a single snow whirl; in places where three or four columns happened for a moment to fall in line between the spectator and the sun, the whole was black as the smoke from the funnel of a steamboat. Frequently several of the colors of the rainbow would flash out around these dark columns, and a moment after all above the peak would be deep red, giving the top of the mountain the appearance of an active volcano. It would have been a fine opportunity for a scientist interested in the study of atmospheric currents. The motions of these snow-whirls show us what is always taking place in the air at the top of the monntain, doubtless on all mountains of like height The straight current of the atmosphere is broken up into thousands of little whirlwinds that rise from fifty to two hundred feet above the surface of the ground.

Umbrellas.

Everybody knows what an umbrella is, and can tell of what it is constructed; but few are aware how large an industry is represented in the stick of this useful and generally missing property. An official estimate, made in September last, in Kingston, Jamaica, showed that there were a little over 500,000 sticks awaiting export to England and the United States to be made into umbrella handles. These sticks were almost without exception pimento, and it is not surprising to be informed that owners and lessees of pimento walks are becoming alarmed at the growth of a trade which threatens to uproot in a few years, all their young trees. The export returns for the past five years show that an average of 2,000 bundles of sticks has been sent out of the island annually in the ordinary courses of trade, and the returns for the first three-quarters of 1881 show an export of over 4,500 bundles valued at $15,000. When it is remembered that each bundle contains from 500 to 800 sticks, each of which represent a young bearing pimento tree, the extent of the destruction may be realized.

The editorial departments throughout will be unusually complete, and "The World's Work" will be considerably enlarged.

The price of THE CENTURY MAGAZINE will remain at $4.00 per year (35 cents a number). Sane or Insane?

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Guiteau came into court this morning apparently under some strong excitement. Colonel Charles Reed took a seat by his side, and whispered something to him. Guiteau, striking the table violently, began to expostulate, saying, "I won't do anything of the kind; I--" At this point Scoville whispered some expostulation, when Guiteau angrily said to him: "I won't have you compromising my case by foolish questions; you must get off my case if you can't stop compromising it." A whispered consultation between the three mentioned seemed to result in pacifying the prisoner, who looked up with a smile and said: "I was going to make a speech, but I have changed my mind and guess I won't do it." He then busied himself opening his mail, remarking: "This is the first time I have opened my mail for some time."

Dr. Theodore Dramond, of Auburn, New York, who had been summoned for the defense and retained by the prosecution, was called to the stand. Witness beleived, judging by the evidence to which he had listened, including that of the prisoner himself, and from the appearance and conductof the prisoner, that he is a sane man. The hypothetical questions put to Dr. Worchester yesterday were then read to the witness and he replied: "I should say he was sane."

Witness was questioned at great length, and his answers indicated great conservity of opinion.

"Scoville finally asked him: "Well, doctor, how old do you think a physician ought to be before he is able to distinguish between a sane and an insane man?"

Witness replied that he, himself, was not yet old enough to distinguish between sane and insane people.

Corkhill desired an adjournment but Scoville inquired, "Where is your witness Shaw, I can dispose of him in a few minutes.'

Mr. Shaw was called, when Guiteau shouted:

'Here's the man that told that lie. We have got your record; Shaw, from New Jersey. Where the judge from the bench said you ought to be in the penitentiary.'

Witness was asked if he had not been indicted for perjury, and replied that he had. Upon attempting to explain a stormy wordy dialogue ensued, Guiteau shouting that the witness was the most extraordinary liar in America. Witness was finally permitted to explain that it arose through misapprehension and that he was acquitted by the jury. Mr. Scoville gave notice to him to defend his character, as he had four witnesses to introduce whose testimony he (Shaw) should want to meet.

Adjourned.

The Great Trial.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31— Dr. Gray, superintendent of the Utica lunatic asylum, was recalled to the stand and his examination-in-chief was proceeded with. Being asked by the district attorney to give the reasons on which he had yesterday based his opinion of the prisoner's insanity at the time of his examination in the jail he said: In looking over the history of the prisoner as given by me himself and considering his physical state through life I could see no evidences anywhere through his life when he had been insane or had any symptoms of insanity. Coming down to the period of his arrival in Washington on the 5th of March, I found that the prisoner was then in good health. He said that he had not even had a headache or any evidence whatever of any physical disturbance. He followed up his effort to obtain an office persistently and in a manner which he himself thought best to secure it—by personal application. He claimed no inspiration and no insanity of any kind. I inquired of the prisoner whether he claimed an inspiration at that time, and he said no.

I took into consideration in forming my opinion his statement that the inspiration which he claimed, or the press of Deity, did not come to him at the time of the inception of the act, but not until after he had fully made up his mind to do the act.

The prisoner--All this thing was the result of grinding pressure, and there is where the inspiration came in. Grinding pressure made the inspiration. Get that thing straight.

The witness—I also took into consideration the fact that while he was considering the question he held in abeyance his own act, his own intention. He controlled his own thought, reflection and intention to do the act pending the obtaining of the consulship.

The presence in him of judgment, reflection, self control in regard to his acts was a controlling matter in the forming of my opinion, as also the fact that he controlled himself as to the time in which he should do this act.

All which, in the light of my experience with insane persons who have the delusion that they are controlled, or directed, or commanded, or inspired by the Almigntv, would be entirely inconsistent with insanity. I took into consideration, also, in forming my opinion, the fact of his preparing carefully for his own self safety and protection.

The prisoner—I was not going to allow the populace to destroy me, when it knew nothing about my motives.

The witness—In cases of insanity there would be no preparation for personal safety. He further stated to me that he had looked up the subject of insanity and had considered it in connection with his defense.

The prisoner—That is false.

The witness—That would be inconsistent with anything in the nature of insanity I have observed.

In reply to the hypothetical questions of the prosecution the witness stated that in his opinion the prisoner was sane at the time of the shooting.

While the questions were being read the prisoner continually interrupted with such expressions as: "False," "That's false," "Absolutely false," "The whole substratum of that question is false."

The witness then proceeded to his further reasons for considering the prisoner sane at the present time.

The witness stated that he had come as a witness in obedience to a telegram.

The prisoner—And Corkhill's money. He has a bunghole up at the treasury that will run out $10,000 on this case if he don't shut it quick. He will get shut off himself before he is many days older. It's time General Arthur was attending to his case. If I were president he wouldn't be here. I will attend to him in 1884.

The rest of the afternoon was occupied in a very wearysome cross-examination, Mr. Scoville seeming to be indifferent as to the replies made by the witness to the questions propounded to him and which took quite a wide range. The prisoner, though paying attention to the evidence, did so in a listless way and interrupted less frequently than usual, while the audience impatiently awaited the hour of 3 o'clock when they could escape from the chilling tmosphere of the court room. When the hour had arrived the prisoner called Mr. Scoville's a tention to the fact and he continued: "To-morrow is New Year's D y, 1882. I receive my calls this year in jail. Anybody can come that can get in. I will be glad to see anybody that can get in. I wish everybody a happy New Year."

The court then adjourned until Tuesday.

The Independent Republians.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 23.—At to day's session of the executive committee of the independent Republicans the purpose for which the committee of 250 is to be appointed was actively discussed. The belief is that this larger committee will be able to discover the popular sentiment among the voters of the commonwealth for the candidates who may be proposed by the republican party, which will give the organization a broader range and wider scope of action and power than if confined to a small executive committee. Each district throughout the state is to have as many representatives in the committee as there are senatorial and representative delegates in that district. An address or report of the committee will be issued, and will probably be ready for publication on Saturday.

A Coming Musical Festival.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 23.—The various vocal musical societies of this city have issued invitations to the similar societies located in the various parts of the United States to participate in a grand musical festival to be held in this city, commencing on Thursday, June 29, and closing on July 4, of next year.

Fire in a Colliery.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 23.—The fire in the inside workings at Stanton colliery has gained such headway that the proprietors have taken the mules out and will flood the mine. This will throw between three and four hundred men and boys out of employment until spring.

Notable Surprise.

On Tuesday, the 20th ult., an event of more than ordinary interest occurred at the residence of Mr. Austin Dale, near Boalsburg. A few days previous, couriers, dispatches and private messages were sent to some of our best and most highly respected citizens, informing them that a plot had been laid requiring their immediate and unconditional attention. It was a conspiracy designed to interrupt Mr. Christian Dale, Sr., who lives with his son, in his business pursuits of the day named, and made the presence and participation of all concerned imperative, involving even his pastor in the complicity. When Mr. Dale saw his children—sons and daughters, sons-in-law and daughters-in-law and grandchildren—coming one by one, from far and near, he began to suspect a secret understanding in this mysterious movement; but not until seated at the festal board laden with luxuries such as princes might covet did he fully realize the fact that it was verily a surprise given by his children and grandchildren to celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday. When he saw the tokens of filial affection around and on the festal board; when the memories of three-quarters of a century came crowding back reminding him of six loved ones in graves well known, and of one sleeping under the shadows of the "Sunny South," at a spot unknown, and when he saw those who are perpetuating his name already three generations away and yet present with him, his heart overflowed with feelings of mingled sadness and joy. Gifts to the father, congratulations, music and social enjoyment characterized the afternoon, until the reunited and happy family again separated with hearty wishes for many returns of such joyous seasons.

Mr. Christian Dale, was born December 20th, 1806, and is a son of Henry Dale, of Revolutionary fame, who when in his seventeenth year, entered the army of the Revolution and won distinction as a brave soldier and true patriot. He is the father of fifteen children—ten of whom are now living—and was twice married. The maiden name of his first wife was Hannah Schoenberger, who was the mother of eleven children, and that of the second was Eliza Neff, who was the mother of four children. Three of his sons are graduates of colleges, four were in the army of the late civil war, one of whom, Solomon, fell where no comrade could identify his dust or ashes. Another, Christian Dale, Jr., was a captain in the immortal "49th," and is a scarred and honored veteran well known to many. Two of his sons, A. A. Dale, Esq., and Clement Dale, Esq., are attorneys at law in Bellefonte, and the daughters are married, being Mrs. J. Musser and Mrs. John Musser, Jr. The family is historic and long will the name be revered because of the substantial citizens who perpetuate it. J. Y.

Steps of Progress in Sunday School Work.

We see the following from the pen of Rev. R. Crittenden in one of our exchanges:

The coming new year should be marked with an advance all along the Sunday school line.

I speak with no authority other than that which the humblest deciple should exercise in his Master's service. "Speak to the children of Israel that they go forward." Forward should be our watchword, and our purpose a more dilligent use of "the Sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God." The best help to Bible study is the Bible itself "spiritually discerned." During the year now closing, some of our Sabbath schools have made commendable progress in learning by heart and reciting in concert or otherwise the number, names and divisions of the books of the Bible with the object or subject matter of each book; the Ten Commandments and the 23d Psalm; the names of the Twelve Patriarchs and those of the Twelve Apostles; the Beatitudes and the Lord's Prayer; a short Gospel (doctrinal) Catechism and a Scripture Temperance exercise.

The recitations of one of these supplementary lessons at the regular S. S. session, gives variety and occupies not more than five minutes. With little effort any school would learn all of them during the year. A course of Normal Instruction can be quite easily carried "forward" in this way with an advance to a higher grade each successive year. Will not every Sunday School undertake this first part of Normal Work the coming year? The lessons in leaflet form I can furnish at the rate of fifty copies for fifteen cents. May the Lord make the year 1882 a most happy one for us all! In fellowship with all Christians, I am your yours ever hopefully in work for the extension of the Redeemer's Kingdom.

R. CRITTENDEN.

SUFFERING IS NEEDLESS.—Brooklyn, N. Y., June 21, '81. H. H. Warner & Co.: Sirs—I find that palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, dyspepsia and pains in the kidneys yield easily and gracefully to your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. ROBERT H. THURSTON.

Hublersburg Happenings.

The Reformed Sabbath-school has a rich treat in reserve for its patrons in the shape a Christmas tree on Christmas eve.

The Bible class in this place, which was organized several years ago, is still in a flourishing condition and happily self-sustaining.

On Sabbath next, in the afternoon, Rev. Crittenden will officiate at the services in the Presbyterian church, exhibiting and giving an explanation of the Tabernacle and its furniture.

The Singing Association have secured the services of Prof. William Beck for this winter, and under his auspices, is doing very fine.

Game appears to be quite plenty in the Nittany Mountains, as certain Nimrods of this section have recently returned with some catamounts and coons and one deer.

On Thursday at an early hour, the community in general began to assemble in the Reformed church to await the appearance of a wedding party, the contracting couple being Mr. Leslie Swartz and Miss Mary R. Markle, all of this place. Soon after the guests were seated the Orchestra began playing a "wedding march," during which the happy party made its appearance at the chancel. The bridesmaids were Misses Edith Swartz and Callie Yocum, and the groomsmen were Rev. A. N. Swengel and Wm. H. Markle, Esq. Rev. Hartzell was the officiating minister. Soon after the ceremony the party departed for McVe town via. Bellefonte. May their lives be one of bliss is the wish of IVAN.

—The Pennsylvania Dental Association seems to be "going for" all members of the tooth-pulling fraternity who cannot produce the proper "sheepskins" qualifying them for the respectable pursuit of the profession. The Williamsport Sun and Banner, of Tuesday, says:

Suit was entered before Recorder Smith by Dr. Rhone of Bellefonte, a member of the Pennsylvania State Dental Association, against Dr. H. L. Mundy, of this city, for violating an act of Assembly, claiming that he did not possess a proper diploma. Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock J. C. Hill, Esq., appeared for the prosecutor (who by the way was not present in person), and Messrs. Candor and Munson for the defendant. At a previous hearing Mr. Fred Stalb was examined, who swore that Dr. Mundy had performed work for him and done it in a very satisfactory manner. At the hearing yesterday afternoon Drs. Klump, Williamson and Rhoads were examined but nothing of importance elicited. The attorneys for the defense produced a diploma given by a Philadelphia institution to Dr. Mundy and the Recorder continued the case until to-day in order to examine some legal points.

That's right, Doctor; don't allow any "wolf with a sheep's clothing" to creep into your ranks.

—"Where are you going to night, my love?" said an anxious wife to her husband as she saw him putting on his great overcoat and preparing to walk forth into the night air, "I did hope you would remain at home to-night. Are you going to the club?" A merry look was observed in his eye as he said, "No, darling, I am not going to the club, but I am going to take a walk down to Sechler & Co's grocery store and order some groceries and meat. I will be back soon. Sechler keeps the best groceries in the market and I could not eat my dinner to-morrow if it was made of any other groceries than those bought at his store." His wife cheerfully acquiesced and they lived happily together ever after.

—Our readers will find in another column the advertisement for the sale of a fine farm, located one-half mile east of Linden Hall, the property of D. C. Gingerich of that place. It consists of twenty acres of land on which is erected a good two-story brick house, and is a very desirable place of residence. Here is an opportunity for somebody to secure a good home, which will provide the means of comfortable maintenance for those who understand agricultural pursuits. The terms of sale are very reasonable.

—Last Saturday afternoon Frank P. Blair opened an elegant selection of solid silver goods, arrayed in fine cases expressly intended for holiday presents. These are the latest paterns, and all have been manufactured since Christmas.

—E. N. Freshman & Bros., advertising agents of Cincinnati, have failed. Their affairs have been placed in the hands of an assignee.

Commissioners' Meeting.

The newly elected commissioners of Centre county assembled on Monday morning at 10 o'clock for organization. Mr. Wolf was elected president and Mr. Campbell chosen secretary.

Mr. Campbell nominated Clement Dale, Esq., for atttorney; Harry Williams, clerk, and Dr. T. R. Hayes, county physician.

Mr. Griest nominated D. F. Fortney, Esq., for attorney and Mr. Walker for clerk.

Mr. Wolf nominated Mr. Bower for attorney, Messrs Stover and Harlan for clerk and Dr. Dobbins for county physician.

Without balloting they adjourned until 4 o'clock p. m.

On reassembling, cummissioner's clerk was balloted for, resulting in the election of Mr. Walker on the 6th or 7th ballot. Dr. Dobbins was elected county physician. Mr. Campbell withdrew the name of Clement Dale, Esq., for attorney, substituting that of D. S. Keller, Esq., but no choice was made.

At a meeting held on Tuesday morning, after some discussion, D. F. Fortney was agreed upon for attorney.

Mr. Campbell, the Republican Commissioner, used his best efforts to secure the election of a Republican clerk, but was unable to do so.

Pine Grove Mills Items.

Samuel Musser, son of John Musser, who has been living in Missouri for a few years past, recently returned to spend some time among his friends in this section.

Some professional Christian people did not attend church on Christmas day on account of the superior attractions of roast goose at home.

There are now two newly organized furniture firms in this place. Pine Grove Mills is the place to buy cheap and excellent furniture.

The Lutheran parsonage has been vastly improved in external appearance, by the addition of a portico and bay-window.

The family of Mr. John Markel have the sympathy of this community because of the death of three of their number with diphtheria and the severe illness of another member. There are no other cases of the dread disease in this vicinity.

A china wedding party was given by Michael Hess and his excellent lady on the 24 ult. About one hundred guests were present. The host and hostess received many valuable presents and spread an excellent feast before the assembled guests.

It is a remarkable fact in the history of our village that there was no fair or festival during the Christmas season.

On Christmas day there was divine service in the Lutheran church in the morning and a children's meeting in the evening. At the latter gathering addresses were made by Luther Krebs, a member of the junior class of State College, and Prof. George Weaver, of Clearfield county, who formerly resided in this vicinity. X.

A Pleasant Surprise.

The members of the Milesburg Presbyterian church will please accept the thanks of Mr. and Mrs. Wright for their splendid and generous gift of an elegant set of stone China of 120 pieces, presented to them on Christmas eve. The presentation was made through two young ladies—Miss Julia A. Morris and Miss Lizzie Hahn. Thanks are due also to Mr. George Brew, of Bellefonte, from whom the purchase was made, for his generosity. Also to Dr. Grove, of Milesburg, for a splendid turkey.

Fire at Centre Hall.

The dry goods and grocery store operated by Clevan Dinges, at Centre Hall, was discovered on fire at an early hour this morning. The fire caught from the stove during the night. A large hole was burned in the floor, and a counter destroyed. Contents considerably damaged by smoke, especially white goods. The fire was not noticed until the hour of opening the store for the day's business.

—A man alighted from the train at the depot yesterday wearing a bosom pin the shape of a star and as big as a pancake. Possibly he is one of the star route thieves.

—Three "Germans" are announced to he held in Lock Haven this week, one being given by Miss Hopkins, of that place, and another by the Misses Simpson.

—The state of the atmosphere strongly suggests snow. Now is a good time for some of our local weather prophets to make a prediction.

—The holiday season, in Bellefonte, has been particularly lively, owing to the presence of so many strangers.

—The new officials of Centre county have taken the oath of office.

—Mrs. Margaret Kelley, formerly of this place, but now of Burlington, Iowa, is at present visiting her sister, Mrs. B. A. Scanlon, of Boiling Springs. Mrs. Kelley is accompanied by her son, a very pleasant young gentleman, who expresses himself as delighted with Bellefonte and its surroundings.

—An Allegheny street man, who received a $30 Christmas present from his wife, received a note from the store-keeper yesterday to call and settle. Several other of our townsmen received valuable gifts in the same way. Huge jokes, these are.

Something New.

One of the leading features of New York City is the eagerness with which the people accept any decided improvement that may be introduced. The rush now in that city is for the new kind of Seidlitz Powders put up in two neat wooden boxes and sold for five cents each. 1t4

Frank Blair has just opened another fine lot of solid silver ware, from the Gorham Co., which are put up in handsome satin cases. These goods, in connection with his stock of superior silver plated ware, where the finest display of silver ware ever exhibited in town. As he is the agent for the Gorham Co., he sells at the factory retail prices. d-w-t-f.

Important Announcement!

As it has always been my desire to place before you for holiday presents nice, new fresh goods, selected for each particular season, and as it is impossible to dispose of such a large stock of fancy goods in the short time given to such sales, it is important that I be not compelled to pack unsold articles up and lay them away until next Christmas, as is usually the case, I have arrayed my entire stock of fine goods, selected expressly for the holidays, in a prominent place in my store, and will offer them at exactly one-half their marked price. These prices are the same as before the holidays, and their sale at fifty cents on the dollar represents a large loss to me,—in fact, in all instances makes the price to you lower than the cost of importation, and in many instances less than the actual cost of the labor alone.

You have doubtless admired many articles that you would like to have bought had they not been so expensive. They now will doubtless be lower than you would have thought possible. This reduction makes every article lower to you in price than I paid for them to the direct importers and manufacturers. Come soon, for at these prices they cannot stay long.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

General Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The republican senators held a short caucus this afternoon in regard to the proposition made by a number of democratic senators that Neil Brown, of Tennessee, late reading clerk of the house of representatives, be elected to fill a similar position in the senate now practically vacant by reasons of the senate's assignment of Chief Clerk Shober to duty as acting secretary. There was considerable difference of opinion as to the advisibility of consenting to the election of any new democratic officer and the caucus adjourned without reaching a decision.

The following is said to be the assignments of chairmanships of the house committees determined upon by the republicans: Pacheco, private land claims; Page, commerce; Hiscock, appropriations; Kelly, ways and means: Young, of Ohio, claims; Neal, of Ohio, District of Columbia; Townsend, of Ohio, railroad and canals; Reed, of Maine, judiciary.

Mr. Scoville's attention was to day called to the alleged statement of Mr. Mills 'that he found on taking a cast of Guiteau's head that one side was more fully developed than the other.' 'If his statement is reported correctly,' said Mr. Scoville, 'it will sustain the theory that I have maintained throughout and Dr. Hamilton will have to take back some of his testimony, for he testified that the head was symmetrical. Mr. Mills' statement supports the statements of experts for the defense, and I think every expert will admit that where a head is unevenly developed the smaller side forms the basis for an unbalanced brain and can become the groundwork for a case of insanity. If Mr. Mills substantiates the statement I shall summon him as a witness.' Mr. Scoville thinks that two weeks more will be required to finish the trial.

Secretary of state received to-day the following telegram from the charge d'affairs of the United States at St. Petersburg:

"The Jeanette crushed in ice June 11, latitude 78, longitude 178. Crew embarked in three boats, separated by wind and fog boat No. 3, with eleven men, Engineer Melville commanding, reaching the mouth of Sena river September 19, subsequently November 1, with Captain DeLong; Dr. Ambler, and twelve men reached the Sena in a pitiable condition. Prompt assistance sent. No. 2 has not been heard from."

[Signed] HOFFMAN.

The postmaster general has issued an order directing that on Monday, the 26th inst., and Monday, 2nd January, postoffices of the country shall be closed as on other legal holidays.

The senate confirmed ex-Senator Howe postmaster general, and Judge Gray associate justice of the supreme court; also Thomas C. Acton United States assistant treasurer at New York city, and the following postmasters for Pennsylvania: John Stuart, Sugar Grove; Al. Tyhurst, Huntingdon; E. Y. Davis, Carbondale; D. O. Gehr, Chambersburg; P. Bishop, Oil City; J. C. Long, Tidioute; T. P. Miller, Doylestown; J. A. Wallace, Chester; J. Merrill, Lock Haven.

The president this afternoon signed the bill granting the franking privilege to Mrs. Garfield.

Postmaster General Howe, who is now at his home in Wisconsin, is not expected to enter upon his new duties until after New Year's day.

The funeral of Mrs. Hobbs, wife of S. F. Hobbs, one of the jurors in the Guiteau case, took place here to-day.

Secretary Blaine has declined to deliver an eulogy on the late President Garfield before the houses of congress.

The Cowboy Desperadoes.

CALDWELL, Dec. 21.—A freighter named Ed. Harman came in about noon to-day and stated the desperadoes who did the shooting here on Saturday came to where his father, another freighter and himself were camped, and pulling their guns made the freighters give up their horses. The ruffians also helped themselves to provisions and blankets, and then rode off. Young Harman says there were five in the party, and two were slightly wounded. It was supposed at first that only four of the ruffians got away, but it seems there were five. Their names are Jim Talbott, J. M. Martin, Mug Hill, Bob Munson, and Bob Bigtree. A party of citizens are still out after them. Notice has been sent to all the available points in the territory. A reward of 1,000 is offered for their capture dead or alive, and it seems almost impossible for them to get away. They will certainly be killed or captured unless they receive assistance from some camps in the territory. The inquest on Meagher closed to-day, and the coroner's jury is still out. The inquest on George Spear began this afternoon, and will last the greater portion of to-morrow. A committee of safety has been organized, it is said. If such be the case, there is no evidence of it on the surface.

The Board of Pardons.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 21.—The session of the board of pardons today was very brief. All the murder cases, five in number, set down for hearing, were continued until January, owing to the absence of Lieutenant Governor Stone, whose daughter is seriously ill. Pardons were recommended in the cases of Edward Smith, Philadelphia, murder in the second degree; John Echternachl, Lancaster, burglary; William Gannon, Philadelphia, corruptly influencing an elector, and Samuel Allen, Cumberland, horse stealing. The following applications were refused: Geo. Lesh, Allegheny, conspiracy; Samuel McMasters, Allegheny, accessory to abortion; William H. Cluley, Allegheny, fraudulently making written instruments; William Satterman, Philadelphia, highway robbery; Benjamin Campbell, Fayette, arson; Geo. Grant, Columbia, assault and battery. A rehearing was granted in the case of Franklin Goughnour, Cambria, burglary. The remainder of the list were either held under advisement or continued. The board adjourned until the third Tuesday in January.

Murderous Cowboys.

CALDWELL, Kan., Dec. 19.—A terrible shooting affray occurred in this city about one o'clock this afternoon, resulting in the death of Michael Meagher, formerly Mayor of this city, and George Speer, a gambler. Particulars cannot be obtained in the general excitement that prevails, but it seems that last night and this morning a party of cowboys, named respectively Sherman, alias Talbot; Jin Martin, Bob Munsing and Bob Bigtree, with George Sharpe and a man named Lowe, were drinking and carousing. At about eight o'clock this morning they began to show a disposition to raise a disturbance, and as a preliminary move George Speer shot off his revoler into the sidewalk on the main street. Through the efforts of the police the disturbance was surpressed and as a precaution additionel policemen were put on, among them Michael Meagher.

About one o'clock the cowboys began to shoot indiscriminately. Talbot shot Meagher from the rear of a bank building, killing him instantly. The citizens turned out with such guns as they could get hold of, and attempted to take the party, who in the meantime had proceeded to a livery stable in the north part of the town, compelled the man in attendance to give them horses, and mounted and started off. Speer attempted to saddle a horse near the red light dance house, and while doing so, was shot by one of the citizens. The others struck off in the direction of Hunnewell, and about two miles east struck south for the Indian Territory. A part of citizens started after them, and at last accounts were within sight of he four fleeing cow boys. It is likely that they will be taken, and if brought back alive nothing will save them from being lynched. The excitement here is intense, and the present disposition is to make the aiders and abettors of the murderous gang pull out from this neighborhood.

Blacklegs Summarily Disposed Of.

LEADVILLE, Colorado, Dec. 19.—The Independent mining camp, twenty miles west of here, has for a long time been overrun by desperate characters who kept it in a state of turmoil. Often several of these would band together and virtually take possession of the camp, shooting men down in the street and making it necessary for the citizens to close their stores and suspend business for several hours. Shortly after dark last night Patton and Malloy, two desperadoes, having the reputation of killing a number of men, became intoxicated and began to fire their revolvers promiscuously. General indignation ensued and the people turned out en masse and pursued the desperadoes, who were finally brought to bay and literally riddled with bullets. They returned the fire of the mob, but without effect. A little later a vegilance committee was formed for the purpose of hanging some of the worst of the blacklegs, but nearly all of that class had taken fright and left the camp immediately after the shooting of Patton and Malloy.

A Halt in the Guiteau Case.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The proceedings in the Guiteau trial will very probably come to a standstill for several days in consequence of the serious illness of the wife of Juror Hobbs. At a late hour last night the lady was reported to be very low and not expected to live through the night. A plaster cast of Guiteau's head has been made by Clark Mills, assisted by his son, Theodore Mills. After some hesitation the assassin consented to have his beard removed and then allowed the cast to be made. The operation was quickly and skillfully performed and after it was over Guiteau expressed himself as highly gratified with the result.

The box which Mr. Scoville received and placed in his back yard for fear it contained an explosive was opened yesterday. There was a rope with a noose on the end in it and a note, saying, "With the compliments of the Garfield and Arthur Club of Myersdale, Pa.'

Children Burned to Death.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 19.—At Harbor Springs, near Petoskey, a shocking accident occurred on Friday. August Alberts had been making shingles, and left a pile of shavings in the house he occupied and where he did his work. While himself and his wife were temporarily absent from the house two children, aged four and one years respectively, in some way set fire to the shavings and were burned up together with the house.

Guiteau and Scoville Warned.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—A package received by Scoville for Guiteau and consigned to his back yard under suspicion of containing some explosive, was cautiously opened and found to contain a coil of rope with a noose on its end. It also contained a note saying, "With the complements of the Garfield and Arthur Club, of Meyerdale, Pa." Mr. Scoville has received a postal card dated Mauch Chunk, Pa., signed "Dale ex-Molly," containing a warning of an intended attempt on Guiteau's life by members of the Molly Maguire Order. The police here have received a communication from O'Niell City, Neb., stating that a crank named Atley had started for Washington for the purpose of killing Scoville. A photograph of Atley accompained this communication.

A Colliery Explosion.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—An explosion has occurred in a colliery at Bolton. It is reported that one hundred and fifty lives are lost.

BOLTON, Dec. 20—Evening.—A later supposition is that one hundred and eighty persons have been killed by the mine explosion, as two hundred descended into the pit this morning. Ten injured persons have so far been recovered. The work of exploring the mine and rescuing the victims continues.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—The explosion occurred in the Orrill pit, which was considered one of the safest in Lancashire, as neither gunpowder was used for blasting nor furnaces for ventilation, the whole system of working the mine being purely mechanical. The Arley pit, which is adjacent, was affected by the explosion in the Orrill pit. Of over sixty employes in the Arley pit only twenty-seven were brought to the surface alive. It is feared the remainder perished.

The Vienna Theatre Fire.

VIENNA, Dec. 19.—The official report of the board of works on the Ring theatre disaster says: "The chief engineer asked two policemen at the main entrance of the Ring theatre whether there was anybody within, and received the reply that the whole audience had left safely."

This statement was apparently confirmed by the fact that no persons were seen at the entrances of the building. The men of the fire brigade subsequently made their way to the galleries, but the air was suffocating. It was impossible to penetrate the passages, as the torches went out for want of oxygen and the firemen were unable to breathe. The report expresses the conviction that the audience died speedily from suffocation.

Troublesome Times in Ireland.

DUBLIN, Dec. 19.—A quantity of arms and ammunition was discovered yesterday morning in a house on Brabgan street and four persons were arrested.

The coustabulary barracks at Croboy, County Meath, have been maliciously burned to the ground. The occupants were asleep at the time of the fire and barely escaped with their lives.

Shots have been fired into the house of a mason employed by a magistrate at Clappara. Five persons have been arrested in connection with the affair.

Bold Attempt at Robbery.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 20.—Two men boarded a Hannibal and St. Joe train at Chillicothe last night, and when near Utica drew revolvers and demanded the passengers' money. The passengers had their valuables under the seats and the would-be robbers got nothing. Conductor Bushnell, with the train crew collared the ruffians and threw them off the train into the ditch. At Utica Bushnell sent back a party to arrest the men.

The Defaulting Teller.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Dec. 19—After hearing testimony Judge Barnard this afternoon ordered that Seneca V. Holloway, the defaulting teller of the National Bank of Poughkeepsie, be taken to the Hudson River Hospital as an insane criminal, to be brought out for examination as soon as the hospital authorities shall say he is in proper condition. His physicians believe he will recover his reason in a week or two.

Mrs. Lincoln's Health.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 19.—A special from Springfield, Ill., says:—Mrs. Lincoln writes her friends that she has completely lost the use of her eyes. Her letters are written by an attendant. She does not say what has caused this new trouble. She has been accustomed to sit alone in a dark room, which may have weakened her eyes, although they never failed her before. She says, as to her general health, that she is very weak.

Shot and Killed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—In a street quarrel at an early hour this morning James Maher was shot and instantly killed by Patrick Lynch. Both men were known to the police as hard characters.

A Correct List of the Victims.

VIENNA, Dec. 19.—A correct list of the victims of the Ring theatre fire has been issued by the police. It gives the total number of victims as 794, of whom the bodies of 144 have been legally identified.

The London "Observer" on the Guiteau Case.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The Observer, referring to the Guiteau trial, says it is not too much to say that the proceedings are a public scandal.

Expert Testimony.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 22.—The Guiteau trial was summoned this morning, and Dr. Hamilton, of New York, took the stand.

Scoville desired to have the other experts excluded during the testimony, but the court ruled against him.

During the argument on this point Davidge was interrupted by Guiteau, who said: "I will cut this short, judge, by saying that I am perfectly willing to have them here. I want them to learn all they can: I have so much confidence in their honor and integrity that—"

Davidge—That is precisely what I am coming to.

Guiteau—You are on the right track, judge; I'll take you on my side—you are engaged for my side of this case.

Witness was questioned at great length relative to operations made, the significance of dreams and unconscious expressions, as indicative of mental processes.

Counsel for the prosecution protested against the apparently objectless direction of the inquiries.

Scoville, smiling—Well, gentlemen, I told you I did not know much about this subject.

Guiteau—Then you had better get off the case, if you don't know anything about it. I think Reid and I can do better than you, judging by the way you are laboring.

Looking over the notes which Scoville held in his hand, he continued: "You've got a lot of stuff there; it's not in your handwriting; I guess it must have been contributed by some crank."

Guiteau appeared to be dissatisfied with the result of the examination and finally said to Scoville: 'Oh, tear that stuff up, Scoville; send this man down and call Clark Mills; he is a good deal better man for you than this one. He took a cast of my head the other day, thinking some people would be interested to see it; he took the bust of Andrew Jackson and he thinks I am a greater man than Jackson was; he found one side of my head badly deficient, though.' The prisoner then branched off to the inspiration theory and rattled on for some minutes, on his oft-repeated harangue on the subject of irresistible pressure.

After the examination had apparently been concluded Davidge asked witness if people adjudged medically insane were not nevertheless capable of judging between right and wrong.

Guiteau, who had been writing for some minutes, looked up quickly and shouted: 'What bearing has that when a person is controlled by an irresistible impulse? That is all there is to this case (striking the table violently) and all this talk don't amount to anything.'

Scoville objected, but Judge Cox admitted the question and witness answered: 'There are a great many insane people—medically insane—who appreciate the difference between right and wrong.'

In response to another question Hamilton continued: 'In nearly all asylums there is a system of rewards and punishments in vogue in dealing with the insane, showing it is recognized in the treatment of the insane that they can distinguish between right and wrong and can control their actions.'

On the whole, this witness' testimony bore against the theory of insanity, and was fairly well sustained.

Dr. Worchester, of Salem, Massachusetts, who refused when upon the stand for the defense to answer the hypothetical questions propounded by Mr. Scoville, testified that in his opinion the prisoner was a sane man.

The latter part of the day was nearly all consumed with quarrels between Guiteau and Scoville, and the usual excited speeches of the assassin.

A Dreadful Explosion.

MOUNT UNION, Dec. 20.—The dwelling house of Mr. Joe Ingram, near Mount Union, was totally demolished about 3:30 o'clock on Monday morning by the explosion of a quantity of giant powder. Mr Ingram is a miner in the employ of Mr. John Whitehead, proprietor of Lucy furnace. It appears that he placed several "sticks" of the giant powder in the oven of the cook stove while breakfast was being prepared, which ignited and not only blowed the house into atoms, but killed outright four little children, the eldest of which was a girl of 12 years. They were literally torn into unrecognizable masses of human flesh. Mrs. Ingram, as well as the little ones killed, was blown clear outside the house and badly hurt, although she is still living and conscious. Mr. Ingram was found in the cellar under the debris, considerably injured, but conscious. The house was situate about a half mile from Mount Union, but the shock of the explosion was sensibly felt there. Those who were present describe the affair as being a horrible and sickening sight. A fifth child was also badly injured, but hops are entertained of its recover. It is thought Mr. Ingram cannot recover.

English Gales.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—There were severe gales and heavy rains throughout England, on Saturday and Sunday. Many houses were unroofed and partally demolished. Rivers overflowed and trees were prostrated. In the open spaces around London the gale uprooted hundreds of trees. Several minor shipping casualties are reported.

$100,000 Fire.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 19.—A fire this afternoon in a building occupied by Henrick & Freeman, boot and shoe jobbers, and Shoemaker & Co., boot and shoe manufacturers, caused a damage to the amount of $100,000; covered by insurance. A fireman was seriously injured by a ladder falling upon him.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

The Leading American Newspaper.

During the year 1882 The Tribune hopes to employ with increasing success the work and methods which have won for it so large a measure of popular approval. It has attained, and means never to lose, the high standard of success which was aimed at by its founder, the largest circulation among the best people. So large a circulation and one so widely distributed over the entire territory of the Nation, has never been attained by any other newspaper in the United States. We accept this fact as the verdict of the American people upon the conduct and character of The Tribune. The position it occupies could never have been gained nor retained but by pre-eminent merits as a newspaper, as an organ of sound opinion, and an advocate of just public measures.

In short, The Tribune will, as heretofore, continue to be the medium of the best thought and the voice of the best conscience of the time; will keep abreast of the highest progress, favor the freest discussion, hear all sides, appeal always to the most enlightened intelligence and the purest morality, and refuse peremptorily to cater to the tastes of the vile or the prejudices of the ignorant.

The well known special features of THE TRIBUNE will be carefully maintained. Its Agricultural Department will remain as it is, the fullest and best. The Household and Young Folks' Departments, the literary, scientific and religious features, the standard market reports, will all be kept and extended as opportunity may serve.

VALUABLE PREMIUMS.—THE TRIBUNE has never been equaled by any other paper in the permanent and substantial value of its premiums, and the extraordinary liberality of the terms upon which it has offered them to the public. We take pleasure in calling attention of all intelligent readers to the following offers:

The Library of Universal Knowledge, embracing Chambers' Encyclopædia complete, omitting only some of the cuts, with extensive additions by an able corps of American editors, treating about 15,000 additional topics, thoroughly Americanizing the entire work, adding to it over 25 per cent. of the latest, freshest, and most valuable matter, the whole making 15 handsome octavo volumes of 6 to 9½ inches in size, averaging nearly 900 pages to the volume, printed in large type on good strong calendered paper, and neatly and substantially bound in cloth.

Charles Dickens's Complete Works.

An entirely new edition of the complete works of Charles Dickens, printed from new electrotype plates, large, clear type, on fine calendered paper, in 15 volumes 5½ by 7½ inches in size, containing over 800 pages each, beautifully bound in cloth, gilt. This is one of the handsomest editions of Dickens's works ever issued. The price of the set of 15 volumes is $22.50. We can send either Dickens's works or the Library of Universal Knowledge, as above described, on the following terms:

For $15. The Library of Universal Knowledge, or Dickens's Complete Works, as above described, and the WEEKLY TRIBUNE 5 years to one subscriber.

For $20. The Library of Universal Knowledge, or Dickens's Complete Works, as above described, and the SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE 5 years to one subscriber.

For $19. The Library of Universal Knowledge or Dickens's Complete Works, as above described, and ten copies of the WEEKLY TRIBUNE one year.

For $28. The Library of Universal Knowledge, or Dickens' Complete Works, as above described, and twenty copies of the WEEKLY TRIBUNE one year.

The postage on the Library of Universal Knowledge, if sent by mail, will be 21 cents per volume; on Dickens's Works 15 cents per volume, which the subscriber will remit if wishing them thus sent. In packages, by express had much cheaper.

The Great Bible Concordance.

Analytical Concordance to the Bible, on an entirely new plan, containing every word in alphabetical order, arranged under its Hebrew or Greek original, with the literal meaning of each and its pronunciation; 311,000 references, 118,000 beyond Cruden; marking 30,000 various readings in the New Testament; with the latest information on Biblical Geography and Antiquities, etc., etc. By Robert Young, LL.D., author of a new Literal Translation of the Hebrew and Greek Scriptures; Concise Critical Comments on the same; a Grammatical Analysis of the Minor Prophets in Hebrew; Biblical Notes and Queries; Hebrew Grammar, etc.

This great work is comprised in one handsome quarto volume, containing 1,100 three-column pages, neatly and substantially bound in cloth.

It is at once a Concordance, a Greek, Hebrew and English Lexicon of Bible words, and a Scriptural Gazetteer, and will be as valuable to students of the Holy Word as an Unabridged Dictionary is to the general reader. In fact, every home that has a Bible in it ought also to have this great help to Bible reading and study. It is as well adapted to the use of the common reader as to that of the scholarly clergyman.

We offer it, in connection with THE TRIBUNE, at the following remarkably low rates:

For $6 the Concordance and one copy of the WEEKLY TRIBUNE five years, or five copies one year, to different addresses.

For $11 the Concordance and one copy of the SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE five years, or five copies one year or ten copies of the WEEKLY TRIBUNE one year, to different addresses.

For $20 the Concordance and twenty copies of the WEEKLY TRIBUNE one year, to different addresses.

The postage on the Concordance is 40 cents, which the subscriber will remit if wishing it sent by mail. Except for short distances the mail will be cheaper than the express.

UNABRIDGED DICTIONARIES.—We can furnish the new revised and enlarged edition of either Webster's or Worcester's Quarto Unabridged Dictionary and the WEEKLY TRIBUNE five years for $12; or the SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE for $17. Remember that these are the new and enlarged editions of these great works.

Local Small Talk.

—Francis Murphy, the renowned temperance orator, is expected home from Europe next month.

—What ought to be done: A four story brick edifice erected on the corner of Water and High streets.

—Altoona is excited over the advent of small-pox in that city. Monday Tribune reports two new cases.

—Gen. Jesse Merrill, one of the handsome and gallant citizens of Lock Haven, has received the nomination for post master of that city.

—Our local weather prophets predict cold weather soon with dead-loads of ice and snow. So, brace up boys, and get your skates in order for gliding o'er the frozen deep.

—The Philipsburg Banking Company are about carpeting and fitting up their office in elegant style. The building, we learn is to be heated by steam from the boiler in the flouring mill.

—We hear that some difficulty has been experienced with the new boiler recently put in the water works. It was an expensive affair—$1500—and it is to be regretted that it does not meet the demands.

—Mrs. J. G. Love will give one of her delightful parlor musical entertainments on Thursday evening, January 5. These entertainments are held in much esteem by those who have had the pleasure of attending them in the past.

—The meeting of the Bartholomew heirs was held last Thursday in the First Ward Mission School House at Lock Haven. Samual Smith, of Erie and Allen Bartholomew, of Altoona, were delegated to proceed to Germany with the proper papers and bring back the fortune.

—Numerous changes are taking place at the car works. The railroad track has been repaired and graded; over a thousand window lights have been put in the building, and timbers have been laid to receive the white pine and oak lumber which will soon arrive.

—In consequence of the prevalence of small pox in the city of Altoona, the newspapers of that place are publishing recipes for its cure. One of the recipes is to dissolve cream of tartar in hot water, and drink it at intervals when cold. It will cure in three days and never leave a mark nor cause blindness.

—A beautiful poem entitled "The Queen of Flowers," in manuscript, was picked up on the street yesterday morning. It is quite a fine production and we will be happy to publish if we are sure its author resides in this place. But it really seems to contain more true poetic sentiment than we have ever discoverod any of our friends possessed of.

—The rags which the Y. M. C. A., of this place, have been collecting for a carpet for the young men's reading room have been sent to the weaver's for manufacture. They have also selected a large and excellent list of publications with which to stock that and also the boys' reading rooms. Mr Miller, the new Secretary, is planning a line of work which will keep all the members of the Association busily employed.

—The Jewell county (Kansas) Republican, of the 16th instant, says:

John F. Rossman, one of Jewell county's pioneer settlers, and at present one of its solid, well-to-do farmers, leaves by to-day's train for the east, with a view of spending from four to six weeks in looking over the stamping ground of his youth, near Tusseyville, Centre county, Pa. His aged mother is still living on the old homestead. The desire to see her once more was the motive power that impelled him to go on this long journey.

We are sure that the old friends of Mr. R. will be as glad to see him again as he will be to renew the friendships of his youth.

Eugene Sullivan Acquitted.

The trial of Eugene Sullivan for the alleged murder of his wife, which has occupied the attention of the Clinton county court, during the past week, ended on Saturday night, the 20th.

The defense sought to establish an alibi, and introduced evidence tending to prove that Sullivan was not at the house at the time of death. His previous reputation for peaceable conduct was in his favor. District Attorney Clough and Abrams for prosecution, and McCormick and Furst for defense.

The charge of Judge Orvis on the law governing evidence in capital cases was learned, exhaustive and deeply interesting. He confined his remarks to instructing the jury as to the law, and did not review the evidence. The jury retired at 9:45.

After a very brief absence, the jury returned with a verdict of "not guilty." The verdict was received with general approval. The prisoner, who is thus acquitted of such a serious crime, was discharged. He was pretty generally congratulated upon the happy outcome of the trial.

Sale of the Glass Works.

The sale of the glass works was advertised to take place on the 20th ult., at 10 o'clock. Owing to some delay in the initiatory arrangements, however, it did not occur until 11 o'clock. A respectable collection of the wealthy gentlemen of this place, together with a large number of persons who do not pretend to carry heavy money bags, gathered at the dingy black building at the appointed hour. Considerable joking and facetious conversation was indulged in, each gentleman present claiming to own the whole concern. The auctioneer went quickly from one piece of property to another, followed by the miscellaneous crowd, and did not consume much time upon any single article. The principal bidders were Hon. C. T. Alexander and the Phoenix Planing Mill. The following will show the separate sales and the amounts bid:

Iron pots, 150 to 200 rollers, furnace tools, foot stools, &c., $110; lot of glass in half manufactured state and blocking tackle, $10; lot of drugs, $2; 37 pots, $125; 17 flattening stones, $100; tools and two stoves in pot room, $5; lot of German clay, $2; 2 pots, red clay and wagon, $5; lot of lumber, &c., $3; lot of sand, $12.50; 16 casts of soda, $315; lot of lumber and tools, $2; 3 cords of wood, $3; lot of tools and rollers, $10; 37 boxes of glass, 2 stoves, &c., $73; 200 empty boxes and a stove, $5; stove and fixtures in office $5.50; 2-year lease, $5. Total, $793.

The fires are still kept up in the furnace, but so far as we are authoritatively informed nothing definite has yet been determined upon regarding the future of the works. Numererous speculations are indulged in but they thus far remain only speculations. One rumor says that a stock company, with a capital of five thousand dollars, has been organized in town, while another is to the effect that firms from a distance are negociating the purchase of the works.

Considerable sympathy is expressed for Mr. Davis, who put his money into the works, and also for the men who were induced to come here. The proceeds of the sale are considered to be sufficient to meet all claims for labor.

Later—At 8 o'clock that night Hon. C. T. Alexander, D. G. Bush, Esq., Daniel Garman, John Ardell and other gentlemen were closeted in Mr. Alexander's law office. At that time $5,000 was raised and there was a strong probability that the amount would reach $10,000, and the works be put upon a substantial basis. We understand that Dr. Dartt and Mr. Sechler will also become stockholders if they see that it means business.

Big Words.

The following from an exchange is so much like the advice often tendered to young writers that we take the opportunity of publishing it. It shows so truthfully that those who give advice always practice what they preach:

In promulgating your esoteric cogitations, or articulating superficial sentimentalities and philosophical or psychological observations, beware of platitudinous ponderosity. Let your conversation possess a clarified conciseness, compacted comprehensibleness, coalescent consistency and a concatenated cogency. Eschew all conglomerations of flatulent garrulity, jejune babblement and assinine affectations. Let your extemporaneous descantings and unpremeditated expatiations have intelligibility and veracious vivacity, without rhodomontade or thrasonical bombast. Sedulously avoid all polysyllabic profundity, pompous prolixity, psittaceous vacuity, ventriloquial verbosity and vaniloquent vapidity. Shun double entenders, prurient jocosity and pestiferous profanity, obscurant or apparent. In other words, talk plainly, naturally, sensibly, truthfully purely and don't use big words.

Coal and Coke.

The quantity of bituminous coal sent to market for the week ending December 17, amounted to 115,291 tons, against 76,491 tons in the corresponding week last year, an increase of 38,800 tons. The total amount of bituminous mined for the year is 4,724,874 tons, against 4,144,284 tons for the corresponding period last year, an increase of 580,585 tons. The tonnage of all kinds of coal for the week is 729,115 tons, against 568,236 tons in the corresponding week last year, an increase of 160,879 tons, and the total tonnage for the coal year is 32,313,426 tons against 27,354,918 tons to same date last year, an increase of 4,957,508 tons. The quantity of coal and coke carried over the Pennsylvania railroad for the week ending December 10 was 206,610 tons, of which 148,228 tons were coal and 67,382 tons coke. The total tonnage for the year thus far has been 8,633,702 tons, of which 5,372,529 tons were coal and 2,261,183 tons coke. These figures embrace all the coal and coke carried over the road, east and west.

From Julian.

Report of the Julian Grammar school for the month ending Dec. 15, 1881, J. A. Ward Teacher:

Whole number of pupils enrolled, males 12, females 16, total 28. Number in attendance during month, males 13, females 15, total 27. Average age of pupils, males 13, females 12. Average daily attendance, males, 9, females, 12, total 21. Per cent. of attendance, males 75, females 80, total 78. Per cent of attendance during term, males 79, females 77, total 76. Visitors during month, 17.

The following pupils were present every day during month: Daniel Williams, Charity Swisher, Laura Bullock and Celie Bullock.

The advancement of the school is retarded by the irregularity of attendance of many of the pupils. Tardiness is another prevailing evil. The parents are urged to manifest a deeper interest in school affairs, and see that their children are punctual in their attendance at school, as it requires the combined efforts of pupils, parents and teacher to make our schools a success.

Report of Julian Primary school for month ending December 15, 1881. Tryphena Talhelm, teacher.

Whole number in attendance 31. Progress and conduct good. Present every session: Bessie Iddings, Minerva Holt, Carrie Swisher, Angus Gill, Ory Boyers, Hannah Murphy, George Davis. Missed one session: Alice Murray, James Irwin, Frank Davis. No visitors.

Mr. John Sones, a citizen of Julian, 69 years of age, chopped five cords of wood on last Thursday. Beat that if you can. He has never taken a dose of medicine in his life.

Colds are prevalent about Julian.

Our young townsman, Edward Irvin returned from Huntingdon county, on Friday evening. ZERO.

Bishop Howe's Anniversary.

Anything relating to this distinguished prelate is of interest, and the recent preparations to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the Gospel ministry are considered of sufficient importance to form the subject of a telegram from Reading to the Phiadelphia Times. The exercises incident to its observance will take place in Reading on the 18th of January next. A handsome pastoral staff will be presented to the Bishop. Bishop Clark, of Rhode Island, has accepted an invitation to preach the anniversary sermon, and Bishop Stevens, of Philadelphia, will be the celebrant of the Holy Communion. At the conclusion of these services the visiting clergy and laity will be entertained on behalf of the members of Christ church by a dinner. The celebrant will conclude with a reception at the Bishop's home in the evening.

Bishop Howe is a native of Bristol, Rhode Island, and was formerly and for many years rector of St. Luke's church, Philadelphia, in the early part of 1871. He is now in the 74th year of his age and still in vigorous health, giving his constant attention to the affairs of his diocese, which, in territorial extent, is one of the largest within the communion of the Episcopal church in the United States.

The Bishop has numerous friends in Bellefonte, and there will doubtless be many who will go to Reading to join in the celebration.

—Mr. John Powers, mayor of this place, recently received an invitation to compete with the mayor of Phiilpsburg for an elegant gold watch, for the benefit of some institution of that place. The idea was for each gentleman to receive votes from their friends, the one receiving the most to have the watch. Notwithstanding Mr. Power's great popularity, he declined to enter the contest and his many friends will consider him sensible in doing so. Had he entered the race, however, we believe he would have been successful.

—A Linn street lady, who evidently is no admirer of Guiteau, suggests that a good way to keep him quiet would be to make a noose in a rope and slip it over his head—then when he jumps up to interrupt the proceedings just pull him back into his seat again. It would be a pleasant reminder to him of where he stands; but the job would be done much neater by suddenly pulling it so tight that he would be saved the trouble of ever rising again.

—The beautiful appearance of the Centre County Bank building causes inquiries in regard to the architect. Mr. George Tate is the gentleman who merits all the praise that may be bestowed upon it. We wish, however, he had surmounted it with a Mansard roof. It would have added greatly to its "swell" appearance.

—The grain warehouse of Rice & Henry, at Reedsville, Mifflin county, was recently destroyed by fire. The loss included 20,000 bushels of wheat and 200 bushels of clover seed. Total loss, $35,000; insurance, $12,000.

—The nights are as dark as Egypt or any other distant semi-civilized country.

—The glass works building once more presents a deserted appearance.

The Huntingdon County Horror.

Readers of the News doubtless noticed a telegram in yesterday's issue describing the terrible effect of an explosion of giant powder in a dwelling house at Mount Union, Huntingdon county. The Huntingdon Semi-Weekly News gives the following particulars:

"About half past five o'clock this morning an explosion of giant powder (dynamite) occurred in the house of a miner named Joseph Ingram, who resided in the suburbs of Mount Union, this county, by which he and his wife were seriously injured and four of his five children were instantly killed. A few days since Ingram purchased a box containing twenty sticks of dynamite, and placed the box in the second story of his residence. The powder froze, and before going to work this morning he foolishly took ten of the explosives and placed them in the oven of the cooking stove to thaw them. His wife was busily preparing the breakfast, and it is thought his children were standing around the stove warming themselves when the dynamite exploded with a terrible result. The two-story house was completely demolished, two of the younger children were blown to the rear of the building a considerable distance and instantly killed; his wife and oldest daughter were blown to the front of the building, and Ingram was found in the cellar, together with two of his oldest children, both of whom were killed.

The bodies of the four children, two boys and two girls, one a babe of eleven months, were fearfully mutilated, and it was a sickening sight to behold the little forms lying beside the ruins of their former home, their heads battered beyond recognition. Ingram was extricated from the ruins and conveyed to a neighbor's house. His right arm was shattered, and his face and body badly cut. He was conscious and related how the accident happened. His wife was struck in the breast with a fragment of the stove and bled profusely, but it is believed she will survive. The oldest daughter, aged about twelve years, was the only one of the inmates that escaped serious injury. Her right leg was bruised, but as soon as she recovered from the shock of the explosion she ran to her grandmother's house, a short distance away, and told the sad story of what had occurred.

Ingram's age is about 45 years, and he has been employed in digging ore for Mr. John Whitehead. It seems to have been his habit, as it is said to be of other miners, to thaw the powder by placing it in the oven of a stove, notwithstanding instructions and warnings to the contrary, and the fearful catastrophe by which four of his children were sacrificed, was the result of carelessness.

To which we add the following from the Altoona Tribune of yesterday:

A correspondent writing from Mount Union yesterday after stating that Mr. Ingram and wife were not expected to live, and that the coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death by the explosion, says: "We visited the place this evening and the scene beggars description. In a little shed near the ruins are the remains of the four children, while in the neighboring houses are the suffering bodies of the father and and the eldest daughter—all of whom are lying in a precarious condition. The children killed are aged respectively about, Frank, 13; William, 8; Elsie, 3; Gracie, 1. Martha, the surviving daughter, is aged about 15."

The Bellefonte Nail Works.

This important enterprise was first talked of about two month ago, the partnership has been formed less than eight weeks, and to-day a large rolling mill building, partially completed, occupies a site on the left of the railroad between this place and Milesburg. A slate roof is now being put on this building and it will be made as fire proof as possible. As soon as this is completed much of the machinery, which has already arrived, can be hauled into the building and some of it put in position. The proprietors are much pleased with the progress already made.

The foundation for the nail works building and for the store house are being laid and work will be pushed forward on them as rapidly as possible.

This, it seems to us, will give those who own land near the works an excellent opportunity for a remunerative investment. The owners of the works expect to erect a few dwelling houses, but the number will not be sufficient to accommodate all and they will find it necessary to seek for houses elsewhere. If the nearest land owners will erect fifteen or twenty comfortable dwellings they will find steady and profitable tenants in the employes of the works.

Twelve Deer.

A rare spectacle was seen in front of the Bush House the other day. A wagon laden with twelve large, elegant deer drew up near the entrance to the hotel, and before there was time to say "Jack Robinson" a crowd numbering about one hundred had gathered about it, as it is quite an unusual thing to see twelve of those graceful animals at one time. We were informed that they were all shot by the party that is out in the woods with Mr. Simeon Haupt. The party has been on the war path for several weeks, and judging by this display of venison, they are accomplishing wonders.

—Dandelions are blooming in some places.

To the Sunny South.

Many of the people of this region are desirous of going to a warmer climate during the cold season, and invalids especially yearn for the mild winters of the Sunny South. To accommodate those who wish to go South during the winter either for health, recreation, pleasure or business, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company with its usual generosity has placed on sale excursion tickets to Jacksonville, Florida, at the low rate of $46 for the round trip, the tickets being good to return until until June 1st, 1882. These tickets are by the way of Washington, D. C., and south of that city passengers have the choice of several routes. Only one change of cars between Pittsburg and Jacksonville, Florida. Sleeping cars through from Jacksonville without change. This cheap excursion will give passengers an opportunity to see the many points of interest in and around Washington City, and also to spend some time at the great Cotton Exposition at Atlanta, Ga.

Tickets now on sale at 78 Fifth Avenue, and Union station, Pittsburg, where further information will be cheerfully given to those who may call or make inquiries by mail. Information can also be obtained of W. W. Potter, agent, at Bellefonte, Pa.

Death of Elias Rishel.

This gentleman, who was almost 80 years of age at the time of his death, lived near Luthersburg, Clearfield county, where he had resided since 1834, and where he died on the 13th instant. He was a native of this county, and doubtless was related to the large connection of Rishels who still reside in this section. "J. T. G.," in the Clearfield Republican, says of him:

"Father Rishel was born March 24 1802, in Penns Valley, Centre county, Pa.; was confirmed in the Lutheran Church in 1821, and moved to Clearfield county in May, 1834. He was respected and beloved by all who knew him. This was abundantly shown by all his friends, neighbors and acquaintances visiting him during his illness, which lasted three months. He was the father of twelve children, eight of whom are dead. His widow, two sons and two daughters and thirty-one grandchildren are still living. He loved the church and the gift of a note of $500 which he held against the Church property was made in August last."

—Never go to bed with cold or damp feet. In going into a colder air, keep the mouth resolutely closed that by compelling the air to pass circuitously through the nose and head, it may become warmed before it reaches the lungs, and thus prevent those shocks and sudden chills which frequently end in pleurisy, pneumonia, and other serious forms of disease. Never sleep in the draft of an open window. Let more covering be on the lower limbs than on the body. Have an extra covering within easy reach, in case of a sudden and great change of weather during the night. Never stand still a moment out of doors, especially at street corners after having walked even a short distance.

—The new boiler at the water works is at present entirely useless, and the old one is being utilized for present emergencies. It has already cost a large sum and there is a favorable prospect that more money must be expended before it can be made serviceable.

—A gentleman residing on Linn street, who is notorious as a misogynist, yesterday remarked: "Women are born carpenters. Let two of them pass each other on the street, both wearing new hats, and they instantly make a pair of back stairs."

—Israel Grazier, a farmer of Logan township, last week shot and killed five deer, near Petersburg, Huntingdon county, three of which were killed on the afternoon of one day and the other two on the forenoon of the next.

—The foundation of Mr. D. M. Sturdevant's new Linn street residence has been completed and the framework is being put up.

—Baker Smith's sign is frequently in an inverted position, notwithstanding the imminent danger of the soup all running out.

—The cans to be used in the new milk enterprise, soon to be started in Bellefonte, are now being manufactured.

—The Central Pennsylvania Dental Association will meet in semi-annual session at Tyrone, January 4th.

—Lynn, Massachusetts, was carried for "No License" in the recent municipal elections. That shows progress.

—Extensive repairs have recently been made on the railroad between this place and Milesburg.

—Oyster festivals do not seem to be popular hereabouts this season. How comes dose tings.

—The citizens of Clearfield are promised a fresh supply of water in in the near future.

—The wind blew from the north last evening, making the air several degrees colder.

—Fair Luna got ahead of us this time. She was "new" last Wednesday, and we neglected to record it.

—The wooden pavement on High street near the railroad is in a delapidated condition. Why is it not repaired?

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is adding a considerable amount of new machinery to their shops in Altoona.

—The Houtzdale Observer, a new paper just started in Houtzdale, has found its way to this office. The first issues are creditable and the field for such a journal is large.

—Homes English Opera Company played to a fair audience at the Opera House Saturday night. The opera was rendered in first-class style and none left the hall displeased.

—The Bellefonte Glass Company (limited) was organized recently with a capital of $10,000, Hon. C. T. Alexander, President, and C. M. Bower, Esq., Secretary and Treasurer.

—The surviving members of the constitutional convention met at Pittsburg last Thursday. Ex-Governor A. G. Curtin was elected president of the organization for the ensuing year.

—$15,000.000 is the amount stated to be coming to the heirs of the Bartholomew estate. A large number of the claimants for a share of the money reside in Centre, Clinton and Blair counties.

—The failure of Austin Curtin & Co., of Mill Hall, with liabilities about $25,000, has created some excitement in business circles in this community. We understand, however, that his debts are nearly all confined to his near relatives and friends.

—Children who celebrate Christmas eve by providing gifts for the unfortunate have mastered the Christain philosophy and will most truly enjoy the glad holiday hours. It is more pleasant to give than to receive was said by One who had fathomed the uttermost depths of human feeling.

—Mr. John Clinedents, of Tyrone, the assistant of Mr. F. B. Stover of the popular meat market, was married on Sunday, the 10th instant, to Miss Fannie Burns, of Tyrone. The happy couple are absent on their wedding tour, but are soon expected to return to take up their abode in Bellefonte.

—Acting Postmaster General Hatton has issued a rule that no supplement containing any advertisements whatever can be allowed in the mails at the second class rate unless the publisher makes affidavit that the same rates are paid for advertisements as for those in the body of the paper itself.

—There is some talk of parties starting a gold mining operation on certain measures near the Juniata below Tyrone. Samples of gold quartz have been found in the proper measure in that vicinity, and there is a prevailing impression that the lower rocks near Birmingham, and on similar belts, will yet show up a big, booming bonanza for some fortunate discoverer.

—The parlor concert at the residence of John G. Love, Esq, on Linn Street, on Thursday evening, was a brilliant success, the attendance being large and distingue. Those who participated acquitted themselves in a manner worthy of the highest commendation, rendering the vocal and instrumental selections in an artistic manner. The teacher, Mrs. Love, and her interesting class deserve the most enthusiastic congratulations.

—A gentleman from State College and his lady friend were in town on Saturday. They started home at a late hour in the evening, and proceeded along quite joyfully until their buggy suddenly broke down. There was no alternative but to pursue the remainder of the journey on foot, which they did. To be sure they were weary and the walk was disagreeably long, but the midnight stars looked down upon two hearts which beat as one, which mere earthly circumstances, no matter how objectionable, could never render unhappy.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

A Large and Interesting Gathering —The Work and Its Results.

The Teachers' Institute was, undeniably, the principal event of the holiday week. It began on Monday and ended on Friday. We think that all who attended its sessions will agree that it was in many respects the most successful institute ever held in Centre county. It is natural that this should have been the case. In consequence of recent State legislation on the subject, the attendance of teachers was more universal than ever before. This alone accounts for the number present. The inspiration of the members awakened the interest on the part of the teachers and they actively and willingly participated in the exercises. Superintendent Wolf is certainly an efficient presiding officer, and his gentlemanly yet authoritative manner of conducting the affairs of the institute exerted a salutary influence. In several respects, however, the Institute was not equal to that of former years. The most instructive as well as the most interesting features of the exercises, in our opinion, are the lectures on the several branches of study given by teachers who are called here for that purpose from a distance. The usual number were present on this occasion, but they were not so happily chosen as in former years, and the lessons they gave were not of a practical nature. They occupied most of the time of the institute which they consumed with talks on such subjects as Physiology, Mental Science, Physical Geography, Rhetoric, Morals and kindred topics, which are of course necessary parts of every teacher's education, and apply indirectly to the branches taught in the common schools of this county, yet are not of as much practical utility as the simple talks on Language Lessons, Arithmetic, Music, Primary Methods of Instruction, &c., given by experts at former sessions.

Another interesting feature of the institute exercises is music. At some of the sessions the choir was large and efficient and sang simple selections evidently without previous practice. At other sessions the choir was exceedingly small, while teachers with well-known musical qualifications sat in the audience, taking no part in this exercise. There is greater need of improvement in this particular than in any other which came under our notice. It also seemed somewhat superfluous and untimely to make so many announcements regarding the various educational publications represented by different agents, as if these announcements were necessary factors to the institute's success.

The Centre county teachers who contributed to the exercises by essays, speeches, &c., evinced decided ability, the most brilliant being the essay read by Mrs. Rosa J. DeWoodie on the "Qualifications of Teachers."

The evening lectures, with the exception of that delivered by Prof. McKee, of State College, were but ordinary. Prof. McKee chose for his topic, "Growth and Decay of Languages," and his effort was scholarly, elegant and well delivered. We regret that it was not listened to by a larger audience. The most enjoyable exercises of the entire institute were the readings by Mr. Bible. This gentleman is rapidly improving in his art and now deserves to rank with the foremost elocutionists in the land, especially in the rendition of humorous selections.

NOTES.

Mr. Scott and lady, of Williamsport, were in attendance on the sessions of institute. Mrs. Scott was once a Centre county teacher, and enjoys these visits to her old home.

So far as the attendance of the citizens of Bellefonte contributes to the success of the institute, the teachers deserve to feel encouraged. They were represented in large numbers at all the sessions, the inclement weather alone preventing their more numerous attendance. During the fair hours of Wednesday afternoon the Court House was uncomfortably crowded.

We did not hear any complaints of cold weather during the sessions of of institute, which is another particular in which it was not at all like last year.

Many of the good-looking lady teachers are married, which greatly detracts from their attractions.

C. L. Gramley was only heard at intervals. Wherefore silent?

Lieb & VanOrmer were as busy as bees in their editorial capacity.

—George Washington Cole, of Coleville, a very excellent young man, died at that place on Wednesday, the 28th of December. He was born on the 2d of August, 1855, and at the time of his death was 26 years old. He was a member of the Baptist church of this place. The funeral took place on Friday afternoon.

Desperate Struggle with a Buck.

The most exciting adventure, in connection with deer hunting, which has come to our knowledge this season, occurred a few days ago in the vicinity of Pine Grove. Mr. John Homan, of Lemont, accompanied by his valuable and faithful dog, was in search of deer when he encountered a large, powerful buck. He fired instantly, striking the animal in the fore shoulder. The dog rushed forward at the same time, when it and the buck engaged in a terrible conflict in which the dog was rapidly getting the worst of it. Before Mr. H. could fire again the struggling animals had rolled into a neighboring stream of water where the fight was continued. The second shot from Mr. Homan's gun just grazed the buck, but was sufficient to turn the attention of the animal upon him. Leaping from the water, he bounded toward Mr. Homan, who not being prepared to fire, elevated his gun in both hands and shouted at the top of his voice. This had the effect of terrifying the animal and it paused for an instant. The faithful dog, though considerably injured, was still 'good game,' and rushed upon the buck, clinching his sharp teeth in the animal's ear, and both again rolled into the water, the dog being underneath, but keeping his hold on the buck's ear. Mr. Homan was determined to save his dog and, without fear, leaped on the buck's back and with a hatchet began to hammer away on the head of the animal. The first and second strokes were ineffectual, but the third knocked the animal over and Mr. H. finally succeeded in dispatching him. Then for the first time he realized the great peril of his position. The dog was quite seriously injured, but will recover to accompany his master on another hunting expedition.

A Bellefonte Lady at a New York Wedding.

Miss Kate Curtin, daughter of our distinguished fellow-townsman, Ex-Governor Curtin, was present on Tuesday at the wedding of Dr. W. S. Webb to Miss L. O. Vanderbilt, youngest daughter of W. H. Vanderbilt, of New York. It occurred at St. Bartholomew's P. E. church, in that city, and was a grand affair.

There were two thousand inivitations to the church and three hundred to the house on Fourth avenue and Fourtieth street, where a reception was held from 4 to 6 p. m. The crowd at the church was tremendous and when the doors were opened the well-dressed throng went with a rush that nearly overturned the ushers and policemen. Dr. Webb's brother Walter was his best man, and Creighton, another brother, presided at the organ. The ushers were Louis Webb, F. Edgerton Webb, George Vanderbilt, E. A. Wales, Lispenard Stewart, G. DeF. Grant, Philip Miller and Sargent Cram. The bridesmaids were Misses Helen Webb, Bessie Webb, Kate Curtin, May Carnochan, Lula Case and Nellie McComb. They wore white watered silk dresses, trimmed with pearl lace and caught up with ostrich feathers. The bouquets were of pansies. The bride came in last, leaning on her father's arm. She is a brunette, not pretty, but nice looking and having a fine color. She wore white satin, brocaded with threads of silver. The front of her skirt was cream white satin, veiled by point lace and flounces. The train was ten and a half feet long. The veil was of point lace. The church and house were elaborately decorated with flowers, and the presents, which were shown yesterday to invited guests, consisted mainly of silverware and diamonds. The groom gave his wife a carriage and a team of horses. Her father gave her his house where the reception was held, and he goes uptown to his new residence opposite the Catholic Cathedral. The couple started on a bridal tour early next morning in a special car.

Singular and Serious Accident.

Mr. Baker, of Lemont, was the victim of a somewhat singular and extremely painful accident on Tuesday, the 20th of last month. He was engaged at the time in taking the powder from a lot of musket cartridges, which he had brought with him from the late war, intending to melt the lead and form balls of a different size. He had extracted the powder from all but two, which he carelessly laid with the others. In throwing them into a ladle of hot lead he unintentionally included the two which still contained the powder. The result was a severe explosion, Mr. Baker's left eye being seriously injured by a flying fragment. We understand that the sight of the injured member is permanently lost.

—Mr. and Mrs. Olmstead, of Williamsport, are the guests of our popular fellow townsman, Mr. John Ardell. The home of the visitors is an elegant property located in the suburbs of the Lumber City. They have visited in Bellefonte on several previous occasions.

At the Schools.

Vacation began on the 22nd among some of the smaller scholars of the public school and all of the schools came to an end on Friday night. On Thursday the examination of the younger scholars was conducted, and proved in every way quite satisfactory. In these examinations and also in those which were held on Friday morning the averages were so uniformly high and the deportment of the pupils during the past term has been so good, that the teachers refuse to mention the names of any that excelled the others in any specialties. But the excellently devised reports which have been sent with each scholar to the parents will tell the precise status that the pupil occupies. Examine them, parents, and see how your child is progressing.

On Friday a part of the exercises was the presentation of gifts by the scholars to their teachers. Miss Beckie McGinley received a very handsome box containing an assortment of note paper and envelopes. Mr. Meyers received two volumes of poems—Byron's and Owen Meredith's, respectively. Mr. Lieb also received a volume of Adelaide Proctor's poetical works, and Mr. Hewes was the recipient of a cigar and match stand, combined, with ten excellent cigars, (his peculiar wants in this respect evidently being carefully consulted by the scholars). All the other teachers also received presents from individual scholars, but those above enumerated were the tokens of esteem from the scholars collectively.

All who know anything about the schools this year and in the past, acknowledge that they now stand on a higher scale than ever before. Mr. Lieb's merits and capabilities are well known. Mr. Meyers, in the expressive language of a gentleman whom we yesterday heard give an opinion, is an "A. No. 1." teacher. Owing to the presence and efforts of Mr. Hewes, who is an accomplished musician, this beautiful study has received more attention than at any previous term.

The schools will begin again on Monday, January 9, 1882.

Farmers' Institute.

The teachers of Centre county are not the only class of people who will have the benefit of an institute this year, as one is now announced for the farmers, to be held at the State College, beginning Tuesday, January 17, 1882, and closing Friday January 27, during which time over thirty lectures on subjects of special importance to agriculturists will be delivered. The course is open to all, free of charge, there being neither tuition fee nor examination for admission The lectures will be delivered by Profs. W. H. Jordon, C. Alfred Smith, W. A. Buckhout, Louis H. Barnard, I. Thorton Osmond and James Y. McKee. We shall refer to the subject again in the future.

—Mr. Christ. Uhl, who resides on the farm of ex-Sheriff D. Z. Kline, about one mile from town, met with an accident while visiting Doll & Mingle's shoe store, last Wednesday afternoon. In passing from the store to the manufacturing apartment in the rear he accidentally stepped through a passage-way leading into the cellar. He received a cut in the head and injured one of his shoulders. He was conveyed to his home. The accident was largely due to the fact that Mr. Uhl has partly lost the use of his sight and failed to see the passage-way.

—We understand that the Rev. Mr. Crittenden and Rev. William A. Niles, of Hornellsville, N. Y., with no previous knowledge of each other's plans, were the first to inaugurate a course of normal instructions for Sunday schools, Rev. Vincent to the contrary notwithstanding. The plan is likely to be generally adopted. Another evidence of the advanced ideas of Bellefonters.

—About 11 o'clock, last Thursday night, a west-bound freight train ran into another freight train going in the same direction, at North Bend, a short distance east of Christiana, in Blair county. George Diffenderfer, the engineer of the east-bound train, and his fireman, John Craig, was badly scalded. Eight cars were destroyed.

—An exchange, inclined to look at matters in a serious light, says that the "fall" of the leaves, autumn, when old leaves turn through frosty atmospheric action, will have its prototype nine days hence in the turning of numerous new leaves and the subsequent fall of the fellows who indulge in the operation.

—The body of John D'Armot, who died in Altoona on Thursday night, was brought to this place on Saturday morning for interment. He was buried in the Howard street cemetery, his remains being accompanied to the grave by a delegation of the Milesburg Odd Fellows, of which deceased was a member.

Installation and Supper.

Bellefonte Lodge, No. 268, of the Masonic fraternity, met at the hall of the organization on Friday night for the purpose of installing officers. The officers installed are as follows: Robert Hepburn, W. M.; W. F. Reber, S. W.; G. B. Weaver, Secretary; H. Y. Stitzer, Treasurer.

After the conclusion of this proceeding and by previous appointment, the members of the Order, with a few invited guests, adjourned to the residence of Mrs. J. M. Butts, on Allegheny street, where a substantial feast awaited them. The hour appointed for the supper was 8:30 p. m., but it was fully 9o'clock before the company had gathered around the tables. The bill-of-fair was exceedingly choice and elegant, including turkey, oysters and fruits of various kinds. About an hour was spent in consuming these viands, after which several gentlemen were called on for speeches, among whom J. L. Spangler and D S. Keller, Esq's, and Rev. John Hewitt responded in appropriate and able remarks. The only lady who was present to do honor to the occasion was Mrs. Bean, of Clearfield, who is a guest of Mrs. Butts.

Great credit is due Mrs. Butts and Mrs. W. F. Reber for the excellence of the supper and the pleasant manner in which all that part of the evening's exercises were conducted. They exerted themselves to the utmost to render the supper superb and are entitled to the thanks and gratitude of the guests.

Death of Peter Schreck.

Concerning this respected gentleman, who died at Lemont on the 24th of November, a correspondent writes:

Death has again come to one of the esteemed citizens of Centre county, and removed our friend, Peter Schreck, who died at his home in Lemont, November 24, aged 63 years. Mr. Schreck came to this county about forty years ago. He learned the blacksmith trade, at which he continued a number of years, devoting considerable attention to farming in later years.

By industry and economy he secured considerable property, and was financially well circumstanced at the time of his death. He was extensively known in the county, and was noted for his honesty and Christian integrity. He became a member of the Evangelical church twenty-four years ago. During this time he filled different offices in the church, showing himself approved of God, a workman that was faithful to the trust committed to him.

The community, the church, and, most of all, the family mourn this loss, but not without hope.

His funeral was attended by a large concourse of people who desired to pay a last tribute of respect to the honored dead. The service was conducted by Rev. J. J. Lohr, pastor of the congregation of which deceased was a member.

Serious Accident.

Mr. John P. Moore, who resides on the farm of Mr. Moses Thompson, near Lemont, met with an accident while in town on Friday afternoon. He was driving a team of horses attacheto ad wagon, and when near the depot the animals frightened and began to run. They turned into the street leading to Lawrence Brown's coal yard, and, thinking to stop their course, Mr. Moore directed them across the weighing scales in front of Mr. Brown's coal office. The animals dashed over the post, but the wagon struck it and stopped, throwing Mr. Moore forward. His head struck on the edge of the platform connected with the scales, inflicting a serious gash above his right eye. Dr. Harris was called and gave the wound the necessary attention.

Bound to Go.

A company of Bellefonte capitalists has at last been organized to run the glass work. We use the term "capitalists," but our informant tells us that the gentleman who have put their shoulders to the wheel to roll the concern along do not represent the large capilalists of the town, but rather those who are considered to be possessed of but ordinary means. About eight thousand dollars is now certain and more will probably be secured. A full force of blowers was sent for yesterday, and as soon as they arrive work will be resumed. The members of the company include Hon. C. T. Alexander, D. G. Bush, Esq. John Ardell, Hammon Sechler and Dr. R. L. Dartt.

—Our Presbyterian and Episcopal friends treated the children of their respective Sunday-schools to Christmas entertainments on Wednesday evening of last week. The former was held in the church, where there was a Christmas tree on exhibition, and the children were presented with bags of candy. The latter was held in the Sabbath-school room, and consisted of a grand feast of cake and candy.
